Morgan for the Treasury.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 17.—Ex-Gov. E. D. Morgan is now the favorite for the Treasury. Grant has recommended his appointment, and the merchants and bankers have signed a document to the same effect. Morgan is ready to retire from business so as not to be legally disqualified as was A. T. Stewart when Grant appointed him. He would be acceptable to both wings of the party and would command the confidence of Wall street. President Arthur was Adjutant-General during his Governorship and is on the most intimate terms with him. It is felt that the appointment of Morgan would offset the removal of Postmaster-General James, which is likely to be construed as an abandonment of the Star Route prosecutions. The Tribune breaks silence on the subject of Cabinet appointments, and says that the appointment of Morgan would give universal satisfaction in the State and elsewhere. It says that James' resolution to retire is fixed and unalterable and that no harm will result from New York having both places in the Cabinet for a short time. The Tribune also says the public may as well understand first as last that the entire Cabinet has resigned, and that their successors will be appointed at no distant day.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—Senator Sherman called up his resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to transmit to the Senate a copy of the report of James T. Melin.

Senator Farley asked that consideration of the report be postponed till Friday next.

Sherman did not think there should be any objection to the present consideration. However, if the Senate desired to have it postponed he had no objections, though he would insist on having it adopted during the present session. The resolution was postponed until Friday next.

The President pro tem. announced the appointment of the following Senators to fill the vacancies on committees: On Committee on Foreign Affairs, Aldrich and Lapham in place of Burnside and Conkling; Finance, Aldrich in place of Burnside; Commerce, Miller in place of Conkling; Military Affairs, Hawley in place of Burnside; Judiciary, Feller in place of Conkling; Post-offices and Roads, Miller, of New York, in place of Platt; Education and Labor, Aldrich in place of Burnside; on Engrossed Bills, Miller, of New York, in place of Conkling; Transportation Routes to Seaboard, Lapham in place of Platt; Enrolled Bills, Sewell in place of Platt; Privileges and Elections, Lapham in place of Teller.

The President pro tem. said he understood he had no authority to designate any person as chairman of the committee; that was in the hands of the committees themselves.

At the suggestion of Merrill the names of the new members of the committees will be placed at the foot of the list. The Senate then went into executive session.

When the doors reopened the Senate adjourned until Friday.

Nominations.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—Nominations sent to the Senate were Frank M. Eastman, District of Columbia, District Attorney. U. S., Montana.

Post masters—Oliver P. Temple, Knoxville, Tenn.; Archibald T. Poor, David City, Neb.; Eben W. Cottrell, Michigan, Receiver of Public Moneys, Detroit; Chas. H. Gould, Nebraska, Receiver of Public Moneys, Miles City, Montana; Alex. M. Eggot, Wisconsin, Register of Land Office, Eau Claire; John Cramb, Minnesota, Register of Land Office, Crookston; Chas. W. Pierce, Nebraska, Register of Land Office, Lincoln; Geo. W. Wilkinson, Nebraska, Agent for Indians, Omaha and Winnebago Agency, Nebraska.

CONFIRMED.

The Senate confirmed Robert Y. Halley, of Vermont, U. S. Consul of Barbadoes; Septimus J. Hanna, Register of Lands at Leadville, Col.; A. C. Phelps, Receiver of Public Moneys of Harrison, Ark.

The Democratic Caucus.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—The Democratic caucus this morning was attended by only a quorum. After a discussion on the Secretaryship it was decided to defer the whole subject until the Senate reassembles next Friday. Even should the Democrats move to elect their candidate for Secretary it is said the Republicans would substitute a motion to make Shorber acting Secretary and the latter would be adopted.

Greeting to Parnell.

CINCINNATI, October 17.—Hon. Ben Butterworth, in his speech before the meeting of Irishmen to give expression to the feeling in regard to the arrest of Parnell, took the position that Parnell was in the field of debate for the lawful purpose of securing better legislation concerning the great wrongs suffered by his countrymen, and that his arrest would not hurt his cause. Resolutions were adopted recommending coolness and deliberation and the keeping within the lines of peaceful, unswerving resistance. A cablegram sent was: "Ten thousand freemen of Cincinnati greet the imprisoned Parnell. Let the people be cool and determined."

Paying Their Respects.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—The Governor of Michigan and staff, accompanied by about 150 citizens of the State, paid their respects to the President this morning. Senators Ferry and Conger arranged for the reception, and the latter introduced the visitors.

Adjourned Without Action.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—The Democratic Senators met in caucus this forenoon to discuss the secretaryship question, but adjourned without action.

Bonds.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—The receipts under Secretary Windom's recent officer to redeem five millions 3½ bonds on and after today aggregate about $530,000.

Two Millions Accepted.

NEW YORK, October 17.—Over $11,000,000 3½'s were offered the Assistant United States Treasurer and $2,000,000 accepted.

Out of Danger.

The Garfield Pavilion.

CLEVELAND, O., October 17.—The Cleveland Daily Globe, a Democratic paper started in opposition to the Plaindealer, has suspended publication after an existence of thirty days.

Workmen began this morning to tear down the Garfield pavilion and arches in the park. The dais upon which the body lay in state will be preserved in the Western Reserve Historical Rooms. The relics will be preserved in the Capitol at Columbus. Ch[illegible] hall and military armories here. Most of the floral emblems will be restored and distributed as Mrs. Garfield dictates.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—For Ohio Valley and Tennessee, fair weather, southeast to southwest winds, stationary or lower barometer, stationary or higher temperature. Lower Lake Region, partly cloudy weather and local rains and southeasterly veering to westerly winds, lower barometer, stationary or higher temperature. Upper Lake Region, partly cloudy weather and rain, variable winds becoming northwesterly, lower barometer, stationary or higher temperature. Upper Mississippi Valley, partly cloudy weather and rain, variable winds shifting to northwesterly, falling followed by rising barometer, rising followed by falling temperature. Missouri Valley, partly cloudy weather and rain, followed by clearing weather, northerly winds, higher barometsr and lower temperature. Cautionary signals ordered at Grand Haven, Milwaukee, Section 1, Section 2, Alpena, Marquette and Escanaba.

News From Ireland—Firing Upon Workmen on a Boycotted Farm—European News.

Ireland.

LONDON, October 17.—Parnell is in the prison infirmary with Dillon, Sexton and O'Brien.

The Fifty-second Regiment is ordered to Ireland.

FIRED ON

Eleven men returning from working a boycotted farm near Postatarin were fired upon and five found wounded, one seriously. This is the affair that led to the arrest of Andrew and Patrick Gallagher on suspicion of firing the shots before mentioned.

SHOT.

LONDON, October 17.—A man was mortally wounded near Tralee, County Kerry, during the affray between the police and a party of armed men.

England.

LONDON, October 17.—The Steamer Helvetia, which put back to Liverpool on her voyage to New York, was much damaged in the late hurricane and must undergo repairs. The hurricane did great damage in the Netherlands.

THE JEANNETTE.

LONDON, October 11.—A correspondent writes: There is some likelihood that the British Government will co-operate in an international expedition in search of the Arctic exploring steamer Jeannette.

Italy.

ROME, October 17.—It is impossible to describe the enthusiastic cheers after the Pope gave his benediction on the occasion of receiving the Italian pilgrims at St. Peters on Sunday. The Pope looked thin, worn and anxious. A gang of roughs pelted the pilgrims on leaving the Church of St. Vitale, shouting "Down with the Vatican."

THE POPE'S ADDRESS.

ROME, October 17.—The Pope, in his address to the Italian pilgrims at St. Peter's yesterday, stated the deplorable state of affairs placed before him the alternative of enduring continual captivity made harder daily or going into exile. He therefore asked the Catholics to watch and pray for the liberty and independence of the Pope. He concluded by saying he was no longer secure in his palace; that he was outraged in his person and dignity in a thousand ways. The gravity and earnestness of the Pope made a profound impression. He closed his address with his arms raised to heaven as though imploring help.

France.

LONDON, October 17.—The Communist journals express the scantiest sympathy with Parnell and the Leaguers.

Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 17.—The Turkish force in Tripoli will be raised to 30,000.

Kansas City News.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, October 17.—William Ryan, the Glendale train robber, who was on Saturday denied a new trial by Judge White, and also overruled a motion for an appeal to the Supreme Court, was taken to Jefferson City last night by the Marshal to serve out a twenty-five year sentence. Chas. Ellis, a convicted horse-thief; Jack Sheppard, the freight train-robber and J. W. Brarsfield, the escaped convict, were also taken to the Penitentiary. No effort was made to release Ryan as was feared.

At 5:40 this morning thirty-five feet of the bluff street retaining wall, which has been threatening to collapse for the past two weeks, fell, with a loud rash, covering the Hannibal and St. Joe and Wabash railway tracks. The street made dangerous by the fall of two weeks ago is more so now, and with the exception of about fourteen feet it has sunk four feet, and the most of it lies on the railroad tracks, 100 feet below. The city last week let the contract for rebuilding this wall at a little over $16,000, and the contractor was to have begun his work to-day, but will be delayed. The damage was caused directly by the rains, but the wall was never safe. Wrecking forces are now clearing away the debris.

Capsized.

NEW YORK, October 17.—This morning the steamship Crescent City capsized while in the dry dock and was badly damaged. John Hart, fireman of the steamer, was killed and the body fell in the river and sunk. Wm. Butler was injured internally and sent to the hospital.

Miss Margaret Mather.

Miss Margaret Mather, who is said to be the coming dramatic star, is at present in St. Louis with her manager, Mr. J. M. Hill, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon she recited before a number of representatives of the press and the theater passages from "Romeo and Juliet" and the curse scene in "Leah." The lady is a charming blonde, and more than that, she is a woman of decided talent. Miss Mather is traveling through the principal cities of the country this season to be introduced to their critics and managers by Mr. Hill, who is at present the manager of the Denman Thompson Combination. Next season she will make her debut at Chicago. Miss Mather has made a host of friends who will be anxious to welcome her when she returns again next year. She is stopping at the Laclede.

DREAM-JOY.

Within each heart there lies apart
From all its cares and sorrows,
A paradise which knows no sighs,
A world of happy morrows;
A heaven of light unknown to blight
Of winter bleak and dreary,
Whose days are long, and sweet with song,
Whose hours are never weary.

What matterthough earth's pathways glow
No more with springtime gladness?
What if each Junehad flown too soon
And left a look of sadness?
No real love so true will prove,
No tones one-half so tender,
No lips so pure as those which lure
The soul to visioned splendor.

Cold in our own too oft hath grown
The clasp we greeted kindly,
And fickled been earth's friendship when
We trusted it most blindly;
The sod hath pressed the truest breast,
And hid the form we cherished,
But oh! we still can feel the thrill
Of hope which hath not perished.

Ah! never hath the brightest path
The sunshine always near it;
The passion-gust of anguish must
O'ersweep the lightest spirit,
But we who strive one moment, live
The next in blissful seeming,
And half our years are given to tears,
And half to idle dreaming.

ONA HOLLINGSWORTH.

THE JEROMES.

Fluctuating Career of a Somewhat Speculative Family.

N. Y. Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

The recent sale of L. W. Jerome's stud of blooded horses brought him again before the public. He has been for some time past living in comparative retirement. But a few years ago he was among the most prominent characters in Wall street. The Jeromes originally were three brothers, sons of a poor farmer, and were brought up by a rich uncle, who lived at Palmyra, N. Y. The oldest (Addison G.) went to Rochester many years ago and engaged in journalism, and was followed by his brother, Leonard, who adopted the same business. A. G. Jerome afterward came to this city and became a dry goods jobber, whence he drifted into Wall street, and was a prominent speculator, but never reached the distinction attained by Leonard. He was, however, an admitted power in the Stock Board and was at one time estimated at $500,000. His career lasted from 1861 to 1863, when Henry Keep drew him into a reckless operation in "Old Southern," as it was termed, which proved ruinous. He died in 1864 of a disease superinduced by Wall street excitement, and all that was left of his once splendid wealth was what he had settled on his wife.

Leonard W. Jerome followed his brother into Wall street and became a leader in that bull movement which created so many fortunes out of the inflation. Morse, Tobin and some other hairbrained operators were in the same movement and shared its brief success, but soon went to ruin. Jerome was favored with direct communication with the Union army and had earlier advices of its disasters than any other man in Wall street. It is said that he had an accomplice in Gen. Butterfield, whose telegrams were of the following style: "The boy is hurt," which meant defeat. This was followed by another telegram, "The boy is worse," which needed no interpretation. On such information, Jerome purchased immense quantities of stock, which rose rapidly as the disasters became known and brought the inevitable advance in seccurities. At last came theitelegram, "The boy is dead," which announced the failure of McClellan's campaign, and Jerome again dipped heavily into the Market, meeting splendid success. The latter, however, was as brief as it had been brilliant. Jerome for a while moved among the ephemeral millionaires of the inflation, but he was afterward led to invest the largest part of his profits in Pacific Mail, in which he met a Waterloo defeat.

Jerome became bewildered by the rapidity of fortune's favors, and was sanguine to a degree which appeared almost like insanity. He bought Pacific Mail at 200, and this led many investors who were dazzled by his success to follow his example. The result was immense loss, and in some instances these unfortunate people were reduced to poverty. Pacific Mail had been blown up from 59 to 300 by fraudulent dividends, and when this scheme could no longer be sustained the quotations fell to 15. It was fortunate for Jerome that during his splendid success he had settled a large amount on his wife. This included the estate which has since become known as Jerome Park, and some other property, which gave him a handsome support after his losses had driven him into retirement. Part of this property is in Fourth avenue, which is a highly valuable locality. One of his daughters, however, married a British nobleman, and a settlement of $10,000 a year on the bride was demanded by the groom. In order to consummate the match the parents mortgaged their best property to the required amount, hence have crippled their resources. Leonard W. Jerome has held a place as long as possible among horse fanciers and sporting men, and the fact that he has so recently sold his best animals indicates a necessity of retrenchment. He has handled an immense amount of money, and had he retired at the right time might have been a millionaire, but that is too much to expect of any speculator. He holds, however, a respectable social position, which is more than can be said of most of the ex-kings of Wall street.

Lawrence Jerome, the third of the name, followed his brothers into Wall street, where he has been operating for many years with varied success. He was also one of Bennett's favorites, and though they occasionally quarreled, the attachment was not impaired. This is shown by the fact that when Bennett, on his return from Europe, found that Jerome had been unfortunate in his operations, he expressed his sympathy in a very handsome manner. As Jerome wanted to try his hand as a broker, Bennett paid $25,000 for a seat in the Stock Exchange, and gave it to him as an unconditional present. This shows Bennett's impulsive liberality. Lawrence Jerome is often confounded with Leonard, owing to the similarity of name, but in social position as well as in financial distinction they are very different. The same difference exists in their families, as Leonard's children are daughters, while Lawrence has sons. Lawrence Jerome is now among the oldest members of the Stock Board, being one of the small number which can remember the thrilling scenes of the inflation. He has had a very excitinglife, and hence is disposed to avoid the sensational features of Wall street for its more practical. If any man will limit himself to brokerage in its legitimate sense he can make the business fairly profitable, but thisis one of the most difficult things in the world. Brokers, indeed, can hardly avoid becoming speculators, and hence they are at one time the favorite and another the victim of fortune.

Bernhardt's Boy.

From the Chicago Tribune.

Sarah Bernhardt's continued "divagations," as the French say, in refusing to re-identify herself with the Comedie Francaise has revived an old scandal in virulent form. In the days of Sarah's glory at the "Maison de Moliere" it was conceded that, though she h[illegible]ned, her sin was a royal one—that the [illegible]her best-beloved son was none other [illegible] Duke d'Aumale. Certainly this [illegible]inced no desire to escape the re[illegible]ty of this supposititious paternity. [illegible]nspicuous and incessant in his at[illegible]o the adored comedienne. His [illegible] were always at her disposition, and [illegible]y arm was often seen supporting the [illegible]n of the actress after the violent [illegible] "Ernani" or "Ruy Blas." Now, [illegible] that Sarah flouts the Comedie [illegible]zer fields of conquest the [illegible] of her infants is ascribed [illegible]sing personages, and Croizette is [illegible]pedestal as the Duke's favored The Duke himself affably lets gos[illegible]ither it will. He believes that, [illegible]yal blood, he is entitled to the [illegible]erty in his amours, and that the [illegible]rld has no more right to-day than the days of Louis XIV. and Louis [illegible]ncern itself with the pleasures and [illegible]ns of royal personages. It is true [illegible] into the spirit of modern Europe as to be willing to lend his royal brain and muscle to the Republic as General of Brigade and Inspector-General of the Armies. Nor is he alone in this laudable desire to make himself useful to his country. All his nephews and kinsmen are in the army as Captains, Colonels, and what not. The Duke himself has fine palaces in Paris, grabbed from the State by his father, Louis Philippe, but his favorite resort is a secluded nest in the Quartier de Breda, on the hill of Montmartre, where the journalists, poets, painters and better class of cocottes have their pleasure houses. Not a stone's throw from the nest of D'Aumale, on the Rue Chateaubriand, are the houses of Emile Zola and Paul de Cassagnac. There are so many of the rakes in the vicinity that it is sometimes known as the "Quarter of the Princes."

An Historic Hotel.

From the New York Times.

Morrison's Hotel, now historic as the scene of Mr. Parnell's arrest, is a hostelry of very old standing frequently mentioned in Charles Lever's novels. It stands in Nassau street—so named in compliment to William of Orange "of glorious, pious, and immortal memory," whose statue near the whilom Parliament House has been battered and begarlanded, according as it had the attentions of Papist or Protestant. Morrison's commands from its upper windows a view of the very extensive grounds of Trinity College. The Shelburne, in Stevens Green, has of late years rather put its nose out of joint, but it has pretty well held its own nevertheless. Since the arrest of O'Connell none so important has been made in Ireland. O'Connell was bailed by a very rich grocer named Ennis, whose son was made a baronet. The bail was fixed, we believe, at $500,000, and security required for double the amount. It was readily given. The proceedings against O'Connell were variously regarded, some thinking them a great mistake and others not. The Duke of Abercorn is at Baronscourt, and Lord Waterford at Carraghmore. If the situation becomes critical the Government can rely on very substantial support. Above all it has what it had not in 1798—when it had to borrow from a private citizen—unlimited cash at command, and this goes as far with Irish patriots as with any in the world. The Bank of Ireland is well protected, and deadly execution can be dealt out from coigns of vantage on and around the roof, while the rifleman is thoroughly protected. But a piece of artillery in Castle street and Westmoreland street would allay any sort of anxiety on the part of the bank. The arrest of Mr. Parnell has followed closely on the visit of the Viceroy to Hawarden Castle, and is not unlikely to be immediately due to his remonstrances. It has been rumored that Lord Cowper had threatened to resign, and his resignation would create at the present juncture much embarrassment, for the men who are the fittest for the Lord-Lieutenancy are just those who, having nothing to gain by the office, do not care to go.

A Claim for Brokerage.

From a New York Letter.

Last week I made some reference to our courts, and I now mention a case (Basch vs. Gotheil) which certainly is a new feature in litigation. The defendant is a Jewish Rabbi employed by the Fifth Avenue Synagogue, which is the grandest in America, at a salary of $6,000 a year. The plaintiff claims that he procured this situation for the defendant and demands a brokerage of $5,000 for his services. This is the first time an American clergyman has ever been sued for such a claim, and hence the case attracts much attention. Both parties are Germans, and were old friends. Rasch came to America, and learning that a Rabbi was wanted, recommended Gotheil, who admits this fact, but denies any contract. As there is no precedent (for we have no pulpit brokers), it will be necessary to prove a special agreement, which no doubt will be difficult. Perhaps Gotheil, however, may settle in order to escape annoyance. Gotheil is now fifty-four, and has served the Temple Emanuel in a very satisfactory manner during the past eight years. He was educated in Germany, and held the office of Rabbi in a congregation of German Jews in England, whence he was called to his present work.

The Descendants of Cornwallis.

From the New York Mail.

The old Cornwallis seat of Broome Hall, Suffolk, now belongs to Sir Edward Kerrison, whose grandfather began life as a carpenter. It was sold after the death of the second Marquis, whose only son died early, unmarried. The marquisate thereupon became extinct, but the earldom passed to the Yorkton Lord's nephew, who dying without a son, the title became entirely extinct. The second Marquis married a daughter of the duke-catching Duchess of Gordon, by whom he had a number of daughters, all now dead; one married the Earl of St. Germans, another Lord Braybrooke, to whose liberality and love of letters we owe the unearthing of Pepys' Diary. Several of the famous Marquis' great-grandsons fell gallantly in the Crimea. The last member of the Cornwallis family is Viscountess Holmesdale, who has been long married without issue.

Is Patti Coming?

From the New York Mail.

The entirely novel style of management adopted by those who have in charge the business details of Adelina Patti's American tour leaves the public still in doubt as to whether she is coming or not. It has been stated in certain quarters that her tour to this country is abandoned, but there is no intimation of this in the lastest foreign musical papers. On the other hand some of her friends in New York still maintain that she will be here in November. It was alsc stated recently that Nicolini had made Brignoli an offer to join the troupe, though the need of two tenors in one concert company is not exactly obvious. Anyway, Brignoli remains with the Kellogg company. The name of a contralto has also been recently mentioned as coming with Patti. The lady in question is quite unknown to our musical public.

BLUSH TO GIGGLE.

A young lady's hat blew off and was run over by a broad-wheeled cart. The ribbons were somewhat soiled, but the hat is now the very latest fall shape.

An exchange says: "There is no royal road to matrimony." Correct; both king and pauper have to walk right up to the captain's office and interview the old man.

A young lady at an examination in grammar was asked "why the noun bachelor was singular." She replied immediately, "Because it is very singular they don't get married."

The father of a St. Louis bride presented his son-in-law with 80,000 head of cattle. "Papa dear," exclaimed his daughter, when she heard of it, "that was so kind of you; Charley's awfully fond of ox-tail soup."

"What in the world could that pretty Miss Gray see in old Young, I wonder?" remarked a lady in a horse-car, yesterday. "I don't know unless she fell in love with him as an especially old antique. She's an enthusiastic collector, you know."

"Here's my wife and I," said a husband, with much complacency, to his silver wedding guests, "who have been married five-and-twenty years, and in all that time haven't had a single unkind word with each other." "By Jove!" exclaimed one of the guests, "what a stupid time you must have had of it!"

"I'll never starve, my dear," he said
Unto his rural bride,
As through the garden walk the two
Were strolling side by side.
The little farmer's girl looked up,
And "Why?" she archly said.
"Because," quoth he, "in you I have A little hoe-maid bred."

He was an entire stranger to the girls present, and the boys were mean and would not introduce him. He finally plucked up courage, and, stepping up to a young lady, requested the pleasure of her company for the next dance. She looked at him in surprise, and informed him she had not the pleasure of his acquainta[illegible]e. "Well," remarked Cazenovia, "you d[illegible]t take any more chances than I do."

THE SAUERKRAUT CROP.

The Superior Flavor and Bouquet of the Genuine Article.

From the Chicago Tribune.

An advertisement setting forth that one Chicago firm offered for sale 500 barrels of sauerkraut would tend to show that the manufacture of and demand for that delectable vegetable compound had attained to large dimensions. A reporter who made some inquiries yesterday on the subject found that this was indeed the case, and that in this, as in so many other branches of manufacture and commerce, Chicago was, as usual, ahead. This city manufactures and sells more kraut than any other city in the United States, fully 10,000 barrels being handled here every year. The reporter obtained from one of the largest dealers in the article some interesting details as to the manufacture and cost, and the manner in which it should be treated so that its peculiar fragrance and flavor may be conserved.

In reply to a question as to who used the article, the dealer said that, while the largest consumers were of course the German citizens, yet there was a constantly increasing demand from Americans. The trouble was that the innocent sauerkraut was often blamed on account of its perfume. Last year his firm made a shipment of a carload to Missouri, and in a few days they got a telegram from the purchaser that the stuff smelled so bad he didn't know what in thunder to do with it. They replied that some Yankee must have passed judgment upon it, and recommended him to call in a German expert. He did so, the judge pronounced it good, and it was sold at a fair profit.

Much of the cabbage used in the manufacture is grown in and around Chicago, particularly in the vicinity of the stock yards. This year the drouth and other causes have conspired to limit the supply. Much of the Chicago product has been shipped South, to St. Louis, New Orleans, and points in Tennessee, where the cabbage flourishes not. St. Louis makes some kraut, but is dependent on Chicago for the raw material. Kraut is sold in barrels of thirty gallons and casks of forty gallons, and the domestic supply is helped out by importation from Europe. This firm have now on the way 400 casks, each of sixty gallons, from Magdeburg, Germany. Owing to the high prices prevailing here, the foreign product can be laid down in Chicago at figures competing with the domestic manufacture. The true German kraut also possesses certain qualities of flavor and bouquet not yet attained by the American stock, and your true Teuton either makes a barrel for himself or buys the imported, although the Chicago manufacture is much better than it was years ago, and compares favorably with the other.

The process of manufacture is very simple. Take your cabbage, cut out the core, which would make the kraut stringy and wooden, and cut the remainder into long, thin slices. The longer and more attenuated the slices the better the kraut, and connoisseurs go for the Sarah Bernhardt variety every time. The cut cabbage is packed in barrels, after being salted, and is either rammed down with heavy wooden implements or trodden down by heavy men whose nether limbs are cased in rubber boots. This does not sound very pretty, but then it is a decided improvement over the naked legs of the lazzaroni who tread grapes in the European wine vats. The kraut is packed solidly in barrels, which are then coopered up and a small hole bored in the head to allow of fermentation. This endures a week or more, according to the season, and then the kraut is ready for shipment or immediate consumption.

Your kraut, strange as it may seem, is a delicate article to manage rightly. Outside barbarians, unacquainted with its virtues, are given to treating it with salt and water—a sad mistake. All that is needed to preserve it in its native beauty and purity is to press it down in the barrel, so that its own liquor will cover it. The addition of salt water is as ruinous to kraut as the admixture of hot water to whisky punch was held to be by the Irishman, whose recipe for that exhilarating beverage was: "First the sugar, then the lemon, then the whisky; and every drop of water you put in goes to spoil the punch."

Something should be said about the price of sauerkraut. This year cabbage has sold for ten to twelve cents per head, but can now be had, thanks to the recent rains, at from seven to nine cents. Before the manifold virtues of kraut were as widely known as now it sold in years of plenty at from $3 to $4 per barrel, but the wholesale price to-day is about $11 50 per barrel of thirty gallons. The rate has been from $7 to $9 per barrel at wholesale, and in those Arcadian days the kraut retailed at ten cents per quart. This year the retail price will range from fifteen to twenty cents. Dry weather, the ravages of worms, the consequent short crop, increasing demand for the cabbage in its native state and in the form of kraut have shoved up the price.

Kraut is good either raw or cooked, and, like the bean of Boston, the cook must know how to treat it. The Germans generally boil it with fat meat, and large quantities are thus treated in Chicago, put up in three-pound cans and shipped to the Territories and the mining districts. There is no waste about sauerkraut, for the reporter's informant—a German and a good judge of the article—said that the oftener it was cooked the more delicate and tender it became. Besides the large factories engaged in the manufacture here, many of the German grocers and thousands of private families make their own winter supply as religiously as the American housewife cans the tomato or preserves the peach.

Where Three States Meet.

From the New York Graphic.

There is a stone near Pownal, Vt., where three counties and three States meet, viz., Massachusetts, Vermont and New York. A while ago a man leased the spot and erected a three-cornered shanty containing a three-cornered bar, with the stone at its center, and began to dispense corn juice without a license to the sovereigns of the three States. When the Bay State constable came in due time with his handcuffs and warrant, the culprit stepped into the Vermont corner, and, pointing to the intervening stone, defied him. The same happened with the Vermont officer. Then those constables connived to meet and seize him together. While they were pulling out their warrants and handcuffs the New Yorker broke away from them and got over into the State of New York, where he was beyond the jurisdiction of both. Then the majesty of the law in three States was aroused, and then three officers moved upon the shanty at one and the same time, and the defiant rum-seller was now in hot water. He carried out the "joke" to the end, however, for, getting on top of the stone which stands partly in the three States, he shouted: "Come on and divide me into three parts, but I'll make it hot for the one that takes the two-thirds of me that don't belong to him!" He had, however, taken too large a quantity of his own medicine to enable him to preserve his equilibrium on top of the stone, and while still defying the constables he fell off and rolled over into the State of Massachusetts, where he was secured by the officer from that State, and taken to Williamstown in triumph.

Dr. Holland's Death.

New York Letter to Buffalo Courier.

Very few of us were prepared for the news in last evening's papers of the death of Dr. J. G. Holland. Only his personal friends were prepared for it by the knowledge that he had suffered long from a disease that might terminate his life suddenly. The doctors call it angina pectoris, but plain people would say it was heart disease and probably mean the same thing. It had troubled him for several years, and he was told more than once that he must be careful. He was at his desk in the office of the Century the evening before he died, and his condition was then the same as usual. At 6 o'clock next morning he was seized with sharp pains about the heart, and before a doctor could reach him he was dead. His place as editor of the magazine that he founded eleven years ago will probably be taken by Mr. R. H. Gilder, his chief assistant for some years past. Dr. Holland was a regular resident of New York only nine years, [illegible] twenty years since he [illegible] looking for a publisher. He found one in Charles Scribner, and author and publisher remained good friends from that time till Mr. Scribner's death. Scribner's Monthly, now the Century, was created almost wholly by Holland, who "thought it out" some time before the first number appeared. It became a greater success, however, than either the editor or publisher had anticipated and proved the most profitable venture of its kind ever undertaken in America. At all events it made Dr. Holland, who was one of its owners as well as editor, a rich man. He disposed of the larger part of his interest in it some months ago, when the change of name was decided on and the Century Company was formed, but his editorial relation to it remained unchanged. How the magazine will get on without him remains to be seen, but the friends of the younger men in the office are confident that it will hold the vantage ground he gave it. His first acquaintance with the general public was made through the "Timothy Titcomb Letters." He offered them to three publishers before they were accepted by Mr. Scribner, and he lived to see over 60,000 copies of them sold. His poem of "Kathrina," however, had a larger sale, going up to 100,000 copies, and "Bitter Sweet" sold to the number of 90,000. If Dr. Holland was not a great writer he certainly was a popular one, taking the sale of his books as a test.

Paris Under the Republic.

G. A. Sala in London Telegraph.

Whatever was ignoble, whatever was scandalous, whatever was wicked ten years ago, it was all, according to the believers in MM. Claude and Zola, the fault of the Second Empire and Napoleon III. "Who filled the butchers' shops with large blue flies?" Clearly the Second Empire. "Who made the quartern loaf and Luddites rise?" Manifestly Napoleon III. Meanwhile an edition de luxe of "Nana," illustrated by the first draughtsman of the day, is selling by the thousand, and in almost every print-shop window may be seen photographic reproductions of the peculiarly disgusting picture "Le Signe de Nana." In this respect let me call attention to another thing which has mightily astonished me in this Paris, which, since the "corruption, venality and profligacy" of the Second Empire have been swept away, is supposed to be, from a moral as well as a political point of view, "regenerated." If I remember aright, in one of the curiously minute studies of the first revolution which we owe to the industry and research of the brothers De Goncourt, it is incidentally mentioned that to so great an extent, when the Reign of Terror was at its height, had the bonds of moral restraint and even of common decorum become loosened that scandalous pictures illustrative of the mad Marquis de Sade's "Justine" were openly exposed for sale in the shop windows of the Palais Royal. Well, I have been intimately acquainted with Paris for the last forty-two years, and wayfarers of equal seniority with myself may agree with me that at no time during the period which I have named have the printsellers of the gay capital been very strait-laced. Indeed, French and English ideas as to propriety in matters of literature, the drama and art may be said to run in parallel lines which have never met, and, happily—at least so I hope—will never converge. But I do most unhesitatingly declare that at no time during my acquaintance with Paris have the shop windows presented such an astounding exhibition of downright indecency, pictorial and comic, but chiefly photographic, as they do at the present moment. The normally indelicate illustrations which embellish the French so-called "comic" papers—the Journal Amusant, the Vie Parisienne, the Petit Journal pour Rire, etc., which are sold at the boulevard kiosks, mainly concern the French themselves. English people are apt to find the eternal allusions to the inability of cocottes to pay their rent and their desperate attempts to extort money from the other sex, in order to make things pleasant with the concierge and cremiere, rather trite and unamusing. It is the same with the professedly "funny" anecdotes which one finds in the Triboulet and Tintamarre, and Voltaire and the Gil Blas. The bulk of these witticisms read like long-since exploded Joe Millers garnished with doubles entendres in boulevard argot, but the photographic nastiness of which I speak abounds in the thoroughfares most frequented by English and American visitors. Under the arcades of the Rue de Rivoli they literally swarm, and they are nearly as numerous in the Boulevard des Capucines and in the Rue Vivienne. These unseemly productions have nothing whatever to do with fine art properly so called. They are simply disgusting libels, and I am not exaggerating when I say that their number and their impudence have increased three-fold since I was here last.

When Brother Blaine was a Boy.

From the Reading Eagle.

A lady with me spoke to Mr. Blaine, but was not immediately recognized. I said: "You have not got that famous memory in perfection you used to have when you recognized William Lawrence, of Bedford."

"What was the recognition of Lawrence of Bedford?"

"Well, Lawrence, who has picked up considerable fortune of late years, went to school with Blaine twenty-nine years ago at Little Washington, Pa. Coming to Washington City one time he heard me say that I was going to see Mr. Blaine. 'I wonder,' he said, 'if Mr. Blaine would know me now, after twenty-nine years?' 'Certainly he will know you,' said Montgomery. 'The last night,' continued Mr. Lawrence, 'Blaine was in town I sat up with some half-dozen boys who agreed to watch the night out until the stage came along to take him off the Ohio River, and thence to Kentucky, where he was going to teach school.

"Toward morning, when it was about time to go, I said to him, 'Blaine, will you give me as much as you are going to give that nigger boy to carry your bag down to the station? 'Yes,' said Blaine, 'I will give you just the same if you will carry the bag.' 'How much are you going to give the nigger?' 'I was going to give him a levy.' 'All right, I will carry the bag for the levy.' "

"When we went up to Mr. Blaine's house," says Montgomery, "Blaine knew Lawrence, of course. They sat down and talked a considerable time about this man and that, never having met face to face in twenty-nine years. Finally I said, 'Mr. Blaine, I am glad to have brought you two gentlemen together, because I want to see an ancient subject of complaint between you settled.' Blaine looked around for a minute, when his eyes flashed and he said, "Bill, I ought to have given you a quarter instead of a levy for carrying that bag down for me.' "

Two Lilliputian Cousins.

From the Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

There is a young man in Belfast who, in regard to stature and weight, can discount Gen. Tom Thumb or the late Commodore Nutt when of the same age. Little Johnny Robbins, son of William Robbins, who lives in Ward Five, is seventeen years of age, thirty-nine inches in height and weighs but twenty-nine pounds. Johnny has not grown any since he was eight years of age. He is well proportioned and is a most wonderful little fellow. A number five baby shoe easily fits his foot, and his hands and limbs are equally small. Johnny is intelligent, and often takes a trip to Belfast in company with his cousin, Daniel Dunbar, twenty-four years of age, and about the size of Tom Thumb.

Mrs. Edwin Booth's New Home.

From the New York Sun.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Edwin Booth, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McVicker, have rented a house at 13 West Fifty-third street, in order that she may enjoy the comfort of a home. On Monday last Mrs. Booth and her parents left the Windsor Hotel, where they had been stopping, for their new residence. Mr. Booth and his daughter by a former marriage on the same day removed to the Hotel Brunswick, in order, it is said, to be nearer to his business. Mr. Booth intends to travel during the winter. Mrs. Booth suffers from a pulmonary affection and is very feeble.

MELROSE.

Ye nameless builders of a bygone age,
Whose patient toil hath sanctified our land
With holy relics—ye whose cunning hand
Raised this fair Abbey (now by senseless rage
Of bigotry, that all-consuming brand,
Spoiled of its ancient glory)—ye who planned
Fountains and Rievaulx, would your names might stand
In golden letters upon history's page!
Your art is dead; we build up pile on pile,
Setting our sails to catch the wayward nod
Of public favor, greedy of men's praise;
Ye lived obscure, nor grudged to spend your days
On one small corner of a single aisle—
And died content, because ye worked for God.

COMMUNISM RAMPANT.

Meetings in Paris at Which Past Crimes Were Gloried In.

Paris Dispatch to London Standard, Oct. 3.

There can be no disguising the fact that the Communist Party are once more raising their heads, and that too in a most audacious way. Two meetings have just been held in Paris in the course of which the miscreants who carried out the sanguinary insurrection of 1871 gloried in their crime before large and approving audiences. The first of these gatherings, which was a most uproarious one, took place on Friday night at the Elysee Montmartre, a place frequented by the lower classes. About 2,000 persons of the genuine red type met there to pass judgment on a difference between M. Malon, an ex-member of the Commune, and Lieut. Lullier, for some time Commander-in-Chief of the military forces of Paris. The former recently formulated against Lieut. Lullier a charge, which had been gradually acquiring consistency among his former friends, of having betrayed the Commune in various ways when at the head of its troops. The accused denied the charge, and a jury of honor was appointed, half of the members being partisans of M. Malon and half friends of Lieut. Lullier. Being unable to agree, they summoned the meeting in question to decide the points at issue. The great majority present were evidently in favor of M. Malon, and Lieut. Lullier had a very sorry time of it. After much preliminary noise and confusion Lieut. Lullier was accused of having sold his men to M. Thiers for 2,000f. "Vous mentez!" exclaimed the accused. "A bas le traitre!" rejoined the audience. Great tumult followed, in the midst of which Citoyen Authelme got up to defend Lullier, but the audience refused to listen to him, and insisted on the accused doing his own work.

Lieut. Lullier, white with rage, mounted the platform, when he was at once assailed with hissing and hooting. He denied the charges. Citoyen Humbert, of Pere Duchene notoriety, then came forward and completed the condemnation of the defendant. Lullier happened to smile while Citoyen Humbert was summing up against him. "Crachez lui a la figure," cried out several voices. Eventually a resolution was unanimously passed to the effect that Lieut. Lullier was found guilty and held up to the contempt of all Republicans. An indescribable scene now ensued; the audience rushed on to the platform and shook their fists at Lullier, who sat with folded arms and dumb with indignation. His friends, fearing bloodshed, interposed and managed to get him out of the room by a back door. Meanwhile the meeting broke up, and gathered outside in the hope of lynching Lullier as he left; but on learning that he had eluded them, they were forced to forego that pleasure.

The second meeting took place this afternoon in the Salle Rivoli. It was organized by the Revolutionary Committee of Paris and the suburbs, who, dissatisfied with the manner in which the Algerian and Tunisian affairs are being concluded, want to impeach the Government. The room was decked with flaming red flags and escutcheons bearing the names of Flourens, Ferre, Rigault and other Communist leaders. Several violent speeches were delivered. The members of the Cabinet were called "miserables," "escrocs," "assassins" and the like. M. Gambetta, of course, came in for a good share of abuse. He was described as the prime cause of everything, and should be got id of First they would try peaceful means, but if they fail, then recourse must be had to revolution. At length, the speakers having exhausted their vocabulary of abuse, it was resolved that "a great popular meeting be organized to impeach the ministers, who are traitors and peculators."

Mr. Bennett's Property to be Sold.

From the New York Sun, 15th.

When the founder of the Herald died he left the Herald and the building which it occupies to his son, James Gordon Bennett. His other New York City property he also left to his son, who was to see that his mother and sister were properly cared for. There were given to the female members of the family certain rights in the property of a somewhat undefined character. The mother having died, the sole remaining heirs are James Gordon Bennet and his sister Jeanette, now Mrs. Isaac Bell, who has two children, Nora Bell and Isaac Bell. It has been decided that the property shall be divided, and a friendly suit for the purpose has been entered by Mr. John Townshend on behalf of James Gordon Bennett against Jeanette Bell, her husband, and two infant children. The property to be sold is very valuable, and includes the Bennett Building on Nassau street, the house and stables at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-eighth street, an adjoining lot on Thirty-eighth street, the house 11 West Thirty-ninth street, and the house 27 West Twenty-first street; also, the Washington Heights property, something over forty acres, with mansion. Mr. and Mrs. Bell and family have recently sailed for Europe. The sale of this property will be quite an event in real estate circles.

A Theatrical Sensation.

From the Philadelphia Times.

For a week past members of the theatrical guild and their confidants in this city have been greatly interested over the reported marriage of Lizzie Price, a well-known actress, and John McDonough, a wealthy, middle-aged Philadelphian; but the marriage has not yet taken place, and, if the reports are true, the ceremony is not likely to be performed. Miss Price is a native of this city, and about 35 years of age. She was the wife of a Mr. Hawkes, a Mr. Winkle and Charles Fechter, and is by many persons called Mrs. Fechter. She played with Mr. Fechter for several years, and after his death in Quakertown came to this city and lived with her mother. This season she has been connected with the Eighth Street Theater, where she met Mr. McDonough, who is an elderly, well-to-do lumber merchant and the owner of the theater last mentioned. When they first met report sayeth not. At any rate, rumor has it that Mr. McDonough proposed and was accepted, but before the ceremony was performed a son of the gentleman who was about to take unto himself a rib came from Savannah and succeeded in breaking the match. Miss Price closed her engagement at the Eighth Street Theater last night.

The Mistakes of Moses.

From a New York Letter.

The poor devil ex-Gov. Moses has been released from the Tombs on bail. After his arrest for swindling the feeble-minded old Maj. Hall out of twenty-five dollars two other charges of the same kind were made against him. It looks like hard luck for an ex-Governor to be locked up as a common criminal, but that's just the kind of luck that any man may stumble on when he turns trickster. The ex-magnate of South Carolina is pretty well used to it by this time. He was at least as well off in the Tombs as he was outside for some time before his little operation at the expense of the old Major. He got three meals a day, such as they were, and had a place to sleep, and he was not quite sure of either while he was depending on his wits. Moses did not have many visitors in the gloomy cell in Center street. There are hundreds of men in New York who knew him in South Carolina, but under present circumstances they don't care to renew his acquaintance. There are others who knew him there and have since known him here, but they feel that they have already known him quite enough. When a man, even an ex-Governor, gets into such a place as the Tombs, it is pretty certain that his casual friends won't bother much about him. Many a man has gone there imagining that his friends would have him out right away, but soon found that they cared as little about him, once he was down in the world, as if he had been twenty years in his grave.

A Woman's Downfall.

From the New York World.

Romador Fraeheller, a Cuban child eleven years old, was on Thursday committed to St. Vincent's Hospital by Justice Smith, at Jefferson Market, at the request of Officer Young, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Last Monday her mother, Louisa, was committed to the Tombs upon a charge of stealing $2 from a trunk in the apartments of a colored woman named Della Meyers, living at No. 142 West Thirty-third street. The colored woman had known Louisa for six months, and the money was taken from the trunk while she was alone in the room. She was subsequently admitted to bail and will be brought to trial at Special Sessions next Monday. When arrested she was living in apartments in the cellar of the rear building at No. 420 West Thirty-seventh street. There was no furniture in the chamber except a few barrels, on which the inmates sat, and five or six mattresses, for this single apartment was a boarding-house, kept by one Mrs. Christie. Several women were accustomed to lodge there, paying $1 a week for the accommodation. It is a dismal hole, unfit for the stabling of a beast. Mrs. Fraeheller had two children, one an infant nine months old and the girl Romador. The younger child has since been taken care of by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Yet the woman was not always accustomed to such a life. Nine years ago she was the wife of a wealthy Spaniard who had settled in Cuba. While making a voyage to this city he died, and since then she has steadily sunk into degradation. One son, Augustus, now eighteen years old, was sent to Spain some years ago, and is now studying in a Jesuit college in Madrid. The woman's husband left large estates in Spain, said by some of her neighbors to be valued at $200,000. She has not received any money from them because she says the estates must be divided between the boy and girl when they are grown up. The little girl corroborates this story, and speaks most affectionately of her absent brother and dead father. The waswoman for a while a cook in the Paisley House, but of late she has lost work on account of her intoxication and general immorality. The infant, it is needless to say, was born out of wedlock and is not entitled to any share in the Spanish estate. Mrs. Fraeheller was once a handsome woman and still retains traces of her former beauty.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

Gov. Wiltz of Louisiana, died on Sunday in New Orleans of consumption. He was only in his 39th year.

C. F. Holtz, an architect of Milwaukee, put an end to himself, leaving a letter disclosing that intention. He found a grave in the lake.

CITY NEWS.

The annual mission feast of the German Lutherans of this city was held at O'Fallon Park yesterday.

The Hebrew Family Benefit Association gave a select pleasure party at Druids' Hall last night which was a very pleasant affair.

Edward Keener was struck in the face and severely hurt by a ball, while watching a game of ball back of the Fair Grounds yesterday.

A large delegation of Knights of Pythias will leave for Sedalia this evening over the Missouri Pacific to attend the eleventh annual session of the Grand Lodge.

A man called at the Four Courts yesterday and asked that his wife, who had left his home and entered a house of ill-fame on Seventh street, be arrested and fined.

The parade in honor of the birthday anniversary of Father Mathew occurred yesterday afternoon and was a very creditable affair. There were fully 1,500 men in line.

The Ladies' Land League met at Lightstone's Hall yesterday. An unofficial report says that the ladies cleared $800 at their booths on the Fair Grounds during the Fair.

Rev. Mr. Furguson, of the Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church, conducted the funeral services of Robert McO'Blenis, at the late residence of deceased, 2506 Carr street, yesterday.

An interesting game of base ball occurred between the Happy Hours and the Floridas, back of the Fair Grounds yesterday. The former club came off victors, the score standing 12 to 11.

At a meeting held at the residence of Mr. Dan McNamara, on St. Charles rock road yesterday, $200 was raised toward building a new church in that neighborhood, of which Rev. Edward Trenton will be pastor.

Everything is now in readiness for the grand festival to be given by the parishioners of St. Patrick's Church on the 25th, 26th and 27th of this month. The final arrangements were made at a meeting last evening.

A gentleman was walking down Cerre street, near Fourth, yesterday, when he made motions which some colored women conceived to be an insult to them, and the colored champion forthwith mashed the offender's nose.

Margaret Barry died at the hospital at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, from the effect of a large quantity of Paris green, which she had swallowed in the morning. She was a hard drinker, and her home was by no means a happy one.

A girl, known as Aggie, who occupied a room at Mrs. Brown's lodging-house, 1116 Pine street, tried to shuffle off this mortal coil yesterday by the use of morphine. But the doctor came with a stomach pump, and she will have to try agein.

Mr. Scott was the principal speaker at the Liberal League yesterday, and his subject was the taxation of church property. The pro and con of the question was discussed with spirit. "Plagiarism" will demand the attention of the league next Sunday.

"The beauty of Israel is slain upon a high place. How are the mighty fallen!" were the words chosen by Rev. A. W. Mann, of Cleveland, as the text for his sermon before a congregation of deaf mutes, at Christ Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon.

The second meeting of the Eclipse team, of Louisville, and the Browns of St. Louis occurred yesterday afternoon, and, after a contest lasting 1 hour and 35 minutes, the Browns were declared the victors, the score standing 5 to 3. The attendance was large and the game intensely interesting.

The Swiss-Americans held a meeting at Flora Hall yesterday afternoon for the purpose of raising money to send to the sufferers from the recent landslide at Elm, in Switzerland, on the 12th of September. It was decided to divide the city into districts and place a subscription committee in each to canvass for contributions.

At 8 o'clock last evening Judge Louis Spies died at his residence on South Seventh street. He had been slightly indisposed for several days, but was in his office on Saturday. Judge Spies had been a resident in St. Louis for more than twenty-five yaars, and had a large circle of acquaintances and friends. He leavas a wife and seven children.

The twenty-sixth annual session of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of Missouri will open at Dr. Post's church to-morrow at 10 a. m. There will be over 100 delegates in attendance, and these will be entertained at the St. James Hotel by the lodges of St. Louis. There will be a mass meeting this evening at Dr. Post's church, corner of Tenth and Locust streets.

Budd Braun was at the saloon, corner of Third and Almond streets last night, and being very happy wanted to sing. Louis Peltier, a half-witted Frenchman, told him it was against the rules of the establishment and that he must be quiet. A fight ensued, in which Braun stabbed Peltier in the abdomen, inflicting a very slight wound. The wounded man was taken to the Dispensary and Braun escaped.

Small amounts of money have disappeared from time to time from the safe of a livery stable on Seventh street. The junior partner mistrusted the son of the senior partner, and on Saturday accused the young man of the theft. The youth was pretty badly frightened and ran away, but, it is said, he has since confessed to his father that he did abstract money from the safe. The junior partner claims that $400 has disappeared in the past six months.

Harry Meyer was recently arrested in this city by Detective Hugh O'Neill, and it was thought that the prisoner was the man who robbed the house of Mr. Allan Fairbank, of Wayne county, Ill. Accordingly Mrs. Fairbank, in company with Officer James Wiley of the Chicago police force, came to the city yesterday, and at the Four Courts identified Meyer as the man who had bound and gagged her on the night that the robbery was committed.

The weather was favorable, the crowd large and every one in the best of spirits at Creve Cœur Lake yesterday. At precisely 3:29 Parker and Pattillo were given the word and away they dashed. The race was a close one and was won by Parker by a boat-length in 24½ minutes. At 4:14 Plaisted and Tricket were started and in 20¼ minutes Tricket had completed the course, and Plaisted finished half a minute later. The events were most satisfactory.

Yesterday Officer Kicker arrested Molly McGenty at the request of a carpenter who lives at Seventh and Wash streets. The man said that he had found Molly drunk and had taken her home with him to protect her, and that when he was asleep she had robbed him of everything he had and left. His watch and chain and rule were found when the woman was searched, but his pocket-book and the $4 which it contained when he last saw it had beed disposed of.

There was a largely attended indignation meeting held at St. Patrick's Hall yesterday afternoon by members of the various Land Leagues of the city. Dr. Thomas O'Reilly, M. W. Hogan and others addressed the assembly, and the arrest of Parnell was denounced in the most unqualified terms. A series of resolutions denouncing the British Government were adopted, and preparations were made for holding a grand mass meeting at the Court-house on Wednesday evening of this week. A meeting of the committee in charge will be held at the Lindell Hotel this evening and arrangements perfected.

RIVER NEWS.

The Spread Eagle goes to Grafton at 3 p. m.

The Diamond Joe goes to St. Paul Wednesday.

The City of Providence goes to Vicksburg to-morrow.

The White Eagle of the Davidson Line leaves for St. Paul to-morrow.

The Ste. Genevieve departs for Memphis this evening. Vickers, master.

J. Ross, steward of the Montana, died very suddenly here Saturday of heart disease. He was a colored man, and had been on the river for about forty years.

The swift City of Alton will be the Anchor Line boat for New Orleans Wednesday.

The Lady Lee was delayed and will not get get away for Kansas City until this evening.

The Spread Eagle, Capt. Leyhe, continues to make daily trips to Grafton, leaving at 3 p. m.

Frank Dean, formerly clerk of the Dora, is going back on the river as soon as an opening offers.

The St. L. and M. V. T. Co. announce the Grand Lake and barges to leave for New Orleans to-morrow.

Capt. Archie Bryan's Phil E. Chappell will be off for the Osage to-morrow. Thomas C. Loucks is clerk, Jenkins & Sass agents.

Capt. Milt Harry says he will have to add seven or eight new boilers to the Josie's power-factory, since nearly every town on White River has abolished the sale, use or even mention of the name whisky.

The City of Vicksburg's time from Helena to Memphis on a recent trip was five hours. This is a remarkable performance. Any boat that cen beat it can have the set of horns and miniature bale of cotton now in the boat hall.

Memphis Appeal: Capt. Leo Crane, who has been confined to his room and bed for more than two years, has almost recovered, and is now able to walk out some. Capt. Crane's many friends will be glad to welcome him on deck again.

The Pittsburg and Cincinnati and Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis Lines, it is rumored, are to be consolidated and pool their earnings for a term of five years. This will prevent the cutting of rates, and in the end will prove profitable to all parties concerned in the enterprise.

The Grain Review thinks that it would be a suicidal policy to present a plan for the improvement of the Mississippi River, coupled with plans for the simultaneous improvement of its tributaries. Consider the Mississippi first, and all the weight and influence of its ten bordering States may be relied upon when the proper time comes to improve its feeders.

The Courier-Journal, speaking of the trial of speed between the J. M. White and City of Vicksburg, says: Taking into consideration the fact that the J. M. White has twice the power and double the number of boilers the City of Vicksburg has, the Vicksburg is the fastest boat of the two. As it is, the White won't find the City of Vicksburg a hearse if she ever tackles her when she's fixed for "business."

Ten million bushels of coal are loaded at Pittsburg awaiting a rise. The Monongahela Republican interviewed a coal operator as follows: "You look for a big run this fall? Ans.—Yes; the miners will likely get four cents, and as coal is in great demand below. I look for a heavier output than the mines in this valley have ever known in one season. Every coal operator has the same idea, and has taken advantage of the dry spell to put the mines inside and outside in good order. Is there no danger of the market being overstocked?" Ans.—I think not. You see the demand for coal below is increasing. In the first place there is as much coal used in and about Pittsburg as there is sent below. The active manufacturing interests of Pittsburg now consumes at least one-half all of our coal. This has never before been true till now. In the next place, the opening up of manufacturing interests in Cincinnati adds to the demand, and they use coal now almost exclusively. A few years ago it was not uncommon to see long trains of wagons wending into Cincinnati, loaded with wood; now you see none. Coal is hauled even into the towns adjacent, for it is now cheaper than wood. One load of coal has as much heating power as five loads of wood. Then the building up of the big factories all over interior Ohio makes a demand for coal, which goes by rail from Cincinnati to Dayton, Hamilton, etc., from North Bend and Madison to interior Indiana, and so our river coal goes out to those manufacturing towns, which formerly used wood for fuel.

The "Coming Man."

By Will S. Hays.

We have heard it hinted that the veteran commander, Capt. A. J. Carter, of the Anchor Line steamer John A. Scudder, in the St. Louis and New Orleans trade, will be placed in command of either the City of Baton Rouge or City of New Orleans, now being completed here by the famous Howards. If it be true, we are truly glad of it. Capt. Carter is an experienced and popular boatman, and a most agreeable and accomplished gentleman. He is a man universally esteemed along both sides of the Mississippi River, from St. Louis to New Orleans, and is the "very soul of honor" in all his business relations with the traveling and shipping community, with whom his name seems to be a "household word." As the magnificent and majestic steamer glides up the mighty Mississippi, like a graceful, swan-like thing of life, Captain Jack will walk her hurricane roof with Falstaffian stride, the "observed of all observers," the "monarch of all he surveys," and as he pulls the string that will tickle the silver-tongued, loud-voiced bell, sending forth its warning voice upon the breezy air, then will his big heart swell up with pride, and his bright, beaming eyes sparkle with pride and satisfaction, and his jolly, good-humored face put on such smiles as will make it look like a full young May moon in total eclipse.

Mouth of Red River.

From the New Orleans Democrat.

Major Benyaurd suggests that the way to open the Red River is by dredging out its old course, so as to conduct it into the Mississippi above Turnbull's Island, and by a tumbling or sill dam on the Atchafalaya, to arrest the drift of the Red River into that stream and restore its navigability. The suggestion is not an original one, but that makes no material difference, if he only makes a more successful effort to follow it up than he did in keeping the river open. In a recent number of the Marine Journal Willis Daniels suggests the building of a jetty, so as to throw the current into Spanish Lake. Then cut a canal or outlet from the lake into Old River, about two miles from its mouth, thus giving a straight flow to the Mississippi. Then build a jetty from the foot of the island on the lower side to the main land, thus preventing the water from going down the island on the Atchafalaya side, and consequently into the Atchafalaya. Capt. Wm. Smith gives it as his opinion that the most practical way is to open the Concordia; the distance across is about four miles and the fall nine feet. This bayou was open for many years and navigable the whole year round. It was used for a long time by the keel and bargemen in preference to the route by Old River. Capt. Smith's plan is to build a dam in Red River below the mouth of the bayou, throwing the water direct into the bayou. Very little dredging will be required, and good navigation will thus be assured all the year round

All business or news letters or telegrams should be addressed POST-DISPATCH, 111 North Fifth street.

The POST-DISPATCH has a LARGER CITY CIRCULATION, on each day of publication, than ANY OTHER PAPER published in St. Louis. Advertisers are at all times welcome to call and satisfy themselves of the strict accuracy of this claim.

CHICAGO is said to be suffering from filth and disease. If dirt was provocative of small-pox all St. Louis would be in the hospital now.

THE silence of the Republican touching the "other newspaper" that received $5,000 in the shape of a subvention from the Gas Company is not only eloquent but pathetic.

JOHN KELLY is advising his followers in a mild way to vote the Democratic State ticket in New York, but it is quite evident that he still feels the touch of the withered hand of S. J. T.

THOSE intellectual Democrats in the Senate are still sticking their fingers in water and looking for the hole. They are preparing to elect a Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms and all they lack is about two votes.

A ST. LOUIS powder-house has three car loads of their product stuck on the track in East St. Louis. If these cars were touched off it is quite probable that the freight blockade over there would pe loosened just a little.

MR. W. RYAN, the accomplished train-robber of Western Missouri, has taken up his abode in the State Penitentiary for twenty-five years. He can smile at those youthful brothers of his in Arkansas who have gone into monastic retirement for the period of seventy years.

THE New York Sun turns up its nose because HANLAN and ROSS have decided to row their next match on Creve Cœur Lake, near this city. It says they might have gone down to the river Amazon. Yes, or the Androscoggin, but they simply located where the best inducements in the way of gate money were held out.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are coming in fairly to the St. Louis GARFIELD monument fund. Mr. SYLVESTER LAFLIN, who has the matter in charge, is pushing it with his usual energy and he has some excellent plans as to the character and location of the monument. This is to be a people's monument and small subscriptions are thankfully received.

OUT of respect to President GARFIELD Queen VICTORIA ordered her court to go into mourning for a period of one week. The usual period of mourning for a crowned head is four weeks. Her Majesty, therefore, was only one-fourth as sorry for the death of our President as she would have been for the demise of a person of alleged royal blood.

THE amenities of editorial life are still preserved to some extent in Cincinnati. A few months ago Mr. SMITH, of the Gazette, was urging MURAT HALSTEAD for the Berlin mission. Now Mr. H. is trying to secure the Cincinnati Post-office for the Deacon. The trouble is that they have each undertaken to exert influence at seasons when the signs of the zodiac were not favorable.

WE have received scores of communications on the waiter question in St. Louis. In one of LEVER'S stories a character is made to say, touching the morals of the people o Ireland, that "the rich are as good as they care to be and the poor are as good as they are able." We have read all these communications and we have arrived at the conclusion that the restaurant keepers in St. Louis treat their waiters as well as they can and the waiters are as polite and civil as they can afford to be at the existing rate of wages.

THE Yorktown celebration begins to-day. It is intended to be a rousing ratification of the centennial we celebrated in 1876, just as the surrender of Lord CORNWALLIS was a ratification of the Declaration of Independence. The indications all point now to a grand hallelujah time at Yorktown. The principal military and civic organizations are represented, and thousands of citizens who are not in uniform or regalia are adding their presence to th jubilance of the occasion. Friday is set apart for the reception of visitors; to-morrow the corner-stone of the monument will be laid, and during the entire week the bird of freedom will be shrieking and flapping its wings in a way that will make the mother country feel sorry for having tried to throw the infant Republic across her knee, a hundred years ago. Yorktown is only a small village, and the indications are that the crowd will be too large for its surroundings.

THE Irish of St. Louis are sending their sympathy across the water to their persecuted and down-trodden brethren of the old sod. At meetings of the local Land League yesterday the sons and daughters of Erin were very outspoken in their condemnation of the arrest of PARNELL and their stigmatization of GLADSTONE and the British Government for bringing about and fostering the present disturbances. Resolutions were adopted to this effect which will be heartily indorsed by every lover of freedom and justice on the face of the American continent. England has acted shamefully, even brutally, towards the Irish masses in attempting to arouse them, by insult and outrage, to riotous and revolutionary demonstrations which might excuse their wholesale massacre and remove from cruelty the guise of crime. The present persecution seems specially designed to force the people of Ireland into overt treasonable acts. The fire of patriotic indignation that their repressive policy has kindled in the heart of Ireland will be fed and fanned by the generous sympathy of every free and independent people under the sun.

PUBLIC life in the country is almost as uncertain as one of Prof. KING'S alleged balloon ascensions. Three months ago Senator MAHONE, of Virginia, bore the reputation of a fighting man, if not a man of honor. Now he is out in a card informing the public that Gen. JUBAL EARLY can continue to brand him as a coward and knave with perfect impunity. It seems that Mr. MAHONE has a theory that he is not called upon to fight EARLY because he is old, profane, given to liquor and loose morals. In fact, he has reached an exalted stage in life and he prefers fighting late to fighting EARLY.

JOHN MCCULLOUGH, the greatest of American tragedians, whose home laurels are twined with leaves of English oak—trophies of his recent triumphs in the land where the drama was cradled—will to-night begin an engagement at the new Grand Opera-house, opening in "Virginius" and appearing in a round of legitimate roles which he has done more to endear and familiarize to us than any other actor of the present day. A type of perfect manhood, gifted with rare intellectual qualities and permeated with the fire and spirit of dramatic genius, we sent MCCULLOUGH to England as the representative of that robust, healthy, advanced art which is the outgrowth of American civilization, and which has the power, beauty, grandeur and immensity of our wonderful continent fully and fairly expressed in it. He was received with enthusiasm and crowned by the cold critics of London as the hero of the tragic stage. He comes back to us laden with honors and more firmly grounded and highly polished in his art than ever. He has earned abroad the fame he long ago had at home of being the grandest impersonator of such roles as Virginius, Lear, Othello, the Spartan Gladiator, Jack Cade, Brutus and Richard III. that the world has seen since FORREST died. In this city, where his fame began, he always aims at new and higher perfection, and to his admirers here, who number thousands, his recent successes are therefore so many promises and assurances of a feast of high dramatic art that will surpass anything of the kind ever before presented to the St. Louis public.

WE presume nothing could please Senator SHERMAN more than investigation of his administration of the Treasury Department. His enemies in forcing it are doing him a service. —Cincinnati Commercial.

That's precisely what the friends of the Sar Route brigands said when the investigating rakes were turned toward the muck-heap of the Post-office Department.

A Good Word for the School Board.

ST. LOUIS, October 16, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The general spirit of candor which has characterized your paper even when attacking supposed abuses leads me to think you have received your information in regard to our School Board from irresponsible sources. You are certainly aware that the interests of our public schools are best served when the general public have confidence in and respect the men who constitute our Board of Education. Any attempt, then, which tends to bring the whole board into public contempt must defeat the very purpose every public-spirited man in our midst must have at heart—the improvement of our public service. If the conduct of individual members has brought our School Board into disrepute let us not condemn the whole board, but expose the guilty individuals. You have seen enough of public life to know that some men think themselves honored in bringing disgrace upon any public body to which they may chance to belong. So long as the whole body is made to suffer for their individual sins they are happy, but the moment the scourge is applied to their back they lose their individual importance and sink into merited contempt. You are too keen an observer of human nature not to know that indiscriminate censure seldom effects any good purpose. Let your censure fall where your censure is most needed, and our School Board will stand where it deserves to stand—high in the estimation of our people. Whether the individual who assails our School Board and signs himself "Ex School Director," was, as he thinks himself, a reputable member, I do not know; but I have heard it said by some of his old associates that he was one of the least scrupulous men that ever belonged to that honorable body.

Can you not give the board the benefit of your advice instead of constantly crippling it by your censure? You cannot fail to see that such a course must better serve the public interests and reflect credit on your paper for public spirit, candor and discrimination.

Increased Commissions—Damage to Corn—The Cotton Crop.

The last report of the Agricultural Bureau on the condition of the cotton crop fell very flat in New York, exciting no enthusiasm in the bulls and failing to scare the bears.

David Dows & Co., of Chicago, in their latest circular, say they hear of considerable complaint, more particularly in Illinois, of damage to the corn standing in the fields, and also that which is in the shock, from the continued rainy weather, and more particularly on account of its being warm. This damage extends up into Wisconsin.

The POST DISPATCH was in error Saturday in stating that an attempt was being made by certain firms to advance the commissions on sales of consigned grains to this market above the commission charged elsewhere—in Chicago and other points. It is only proposed to place them relatively on the same footing as the commission charges in Chicago, which is St. Louis' strongest competitor. There the Board of Trade lately adopted a new scale of commissions, and made it obligatory on the members to charge the new rates under a penalty of suspension or expulsion. With the competition there has been and is now in this market among the commission merchants, their charges on sales of cash grain, and also of futures have been cut down to a minimum, and really do not near pay for the risk the merchants assume in advancing money on consignment and handling the grain when received. The best firms in this market have this matter in hand, and probably will soon bring it before the directory and the members of the Exchange for decisive action.

The London Miller of October 3 gives the supplies on passage to the United Kingdom and cargoes off coast of wheat on October 1 as 1,923,500 quarters, against, 1,328,050 quarters same time last year. These supplies are drawn from California, 1,039,500 quarters, Atlantic ports, 354,500; Egypt and India, 196,000; Australasia, 134,500; Black Sea, 100,000; Chili, 98,500. The shipments from Atlantic ports to the United Kingdom for September were 805,000 quarters wheat and 257,000 bags flour, or a weekly average of 201,250 quarters wheat and 64,250 bags flour, against a weekly average of 156,875 wheat and 73,375 flour for the same month 1880. The Miller says: "Still more satisfactory, from the purchasers' point of view, is the quantity of wheat and flour on passage to the United Kindom. This, on the 22d of September last, amounted to 2,096,000 qrs of breadstuffs, against only 1,363,200 qurs on the 22d of September, 1880, a date when prices were several shillings lower than they are to-day. In somuch as home deliveries for the next two months may be reckoned to be at least equal to half our wants, it is clear that this quantity on passage should assure us sufficiency for over two months ahead."

A gentleman just returned from Arkansas, and a short time previous from a trip down the Mississippi to New Orleans, wherein he stopped at all the points of any consequence along the river, journeying into the interior from 100 to 150 miles, thus giving him an excellent opportunity of observing the condition of the cotton crop in the South, gives the following as the result of his observations: Along the river bottoms he found the staple short, but on the highlands long and good. The whole crop was much smaller than the preceding years. In Arkansas the crop was slightly smaller, with a short staple, except in some few localities. The planters have been rushing their crop into market, and this is one reason for the present low range of prices. The principal markets—New York and New Orleans—were not alone depressed by free receipts, but their dealers held prices down low so as to get the cotton as cheap as possible. The receivers at these points, too, have been advancing just as little as possible upon the crop, and as provisions, flour, grain, etc., have been high-priced, the planters have been obliged to market their crop at the earliest possible time in order to obtain money. This accounts for the large shipments to market so early in the season. It is expected by New Orleans dealers that these shipments will fall off heavily after November 15, and then on, about December 1 at the farthest, they look for a stiff advance in price.

INVESTIGATING.

The Fire Department and the Management of the Collier Fire.

Witnesses Examined Before the Mayor—Sweet Words Exchanged.

Mayor Ewing this morning began his investigation into the charges of mismanagement on the part of officers of the Fire Department of the fire at the Collier White Lead Works on September 21. Mr. Thomas Richeson, President of the White Lead Works, and Secretary Euston of the same company were present to represent the prosecution. Chief Sexton, all the assistant, and many gentlemen interested in the Fire Department were also present. Fred Holmes was the only insurance man in the case. The office was filled with gentlemen. The Mayor presided, and Secretary Smith had a bundle of paper in front of him, ready to make a note of any testimony of interest. After everything was ready Mr. Richeson explained, in answer to some questious regarding "his witnesses," that he did not understand that he was to be placed in the attitude of a public prosecutor; he thought the Mayor would have the necessary witnesses present; he had informed the Mayor that he had several witnesses, citizens who had witnessed the fire; he had not given the names because he had not been asked for them, and had made no effort to try to have them present, as he did not think it was his place or duty to subpœna or bring in witnesses; he had nothing personally against Mr. Sexton, and did not want to be understood as in the attitude of prosecuting Mr. Sexton.

Mr. Sexton was anxious to go on with the investigation. A letter from the Mayor to Mr. Richeson was read, notifying him to present his witnesses. There were some bitter words between Mr. Sexton and Mr. Richeson in regard to courting "a full and fair investigation" and to having the investigation postponed. At last it was agreed to go on with the examination of the witnesses there present and that witnesses were to be sworn.

In order to determine Mr. Richeson's attitude in the investigation, Secretary Smith read the complaint made by the president of the Collier Company. It purported to lay before the Mayor a statement of the management of the Collier fire. The engines, it stated, were on the ground promptly, and the water supply was ample. The danger to the Collier Company was not made known to the complainant until after the first alarm. An assistant chief refused to turn on a second alarm without orders from the Chief. When the engines got on the ground, a single stream could have prevented the destruction that followed. After reciting the progress of the conflagration the document went on to say that great damage had accrued to complainants and others through the incompetency of officers of the Fire Department.

After this the investigatian began, Mr. Thomas Richardson being the first witness placed on the stand.

Mr. Richeson said that about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the 21st of September a man came into the office and asked him to turn on an alarm of fire. He ran down to Tenth street and over to Walnut. The fire had then just struck the corner of the corroding sheds, separated by a narrow space from the other buildings. He called the attention of the firemen to a gateway and alley, through which they might have carried a stream and saved the property. The firemen paid no attention to him. He again tried to have them get a stream on the warehouse, which could have been saved even fifteen minutes afterwards, but to no avail. He thought the fireman he spoke to first was Assistant Shockey.

Witness explained the progress of the fire on a diagram, and showed how, in his opinion, the extensive conflagration could have been prevented, but notwithstanding the presence of an engine in that vicinity not a drop of water was thrown to save the building.

On cross-examination by Mr. Sexton, Mr. Richeson said he did not remember how long it was from the time the fire broke out until the first alarm was given. He had stated in his complaint that the engines had arrived promptly, but that was merely an hearsay. Witness was not a bit excited at the time of the fire and thought himself a fit judge of what was going on, notwithstanding about $100,000 of his property was in danger. He thought himself as cool as Mr. Sexton under such circumstances.

After some questions regarding the progress of the fire and its degree of heat, Mr. Sexton asked if the witness could select a better block in the city than the Collier White Lead block to make a quick and big fire.

Mr. Richeson—That has nothing to do with it. What I complain of, Mr. Sexton, is that the engine on Tenth and Clark avenue should have sent a line of hose around to the point where a stream could have been placed against the warehouse.

Mr. Sexton—Do you know who is foreman of the company that was at the corner of Tenth and Clark avenue?

Mr. R.—I don't know.

Mr. S.—Do you know Mr. Rucker, the foreman of that company? Isn't he related to you? Aren't you his uncle?

Mr. R.—I don't see what that's got to do with it.

Mr. S.—I think it shows that Mr. Rucker would be so interested in his uncle's property as to do the best he could.

Mr. Richeson insisted that the only complaint he had to make was that the stream from Tenth and Clark avenue had not been properly directed, and that concluded his testimony.

Secretary Euston said he was sitting in his office when the alarm was given, and followed Mr. Richeson down to the corner of Tenth and Clark avenue. He found an officer at the corner who had turned on an alarm. He asked the officer to give another alarm, but the officer said he couldn't do it without orders from the Fire Department. He made this statement to show how quickly the alarm had been given, for the officer sent it in as soon as he heard the cry of fire. When witness noticed the fire the flames had taken hold of a ten-foot shed, and the firemen were trying very properly to save the row of tenements along Walnut. He asked the firemen to throw the stream on the Collier property, but the men said they were doing all they could, and so they were. Went up to Clark avenue. The fire was very hot along Ninth street then, and witness was one of the last to be driven away by the heat. He saw the fire catch over the gate of the Collier property near the tank room. Witness asked the firemen to try and save the Collier property, and one of them remarked that he had better see the Chief. He saw one of the assistant chiefs and spoke to him, and they put on a new line of hose, about forty feet in length, and began to play one of their streams on the Collier property.

The assistants having been requested to stand up, Mr. Euston pointed out Hester as the chief he spoke to.

Witness, continuing, said that if the line of hose lying on Ninth street had been turned on the property could have been saved. He understood that this line had no stream through it because the engine had broken down. He heard also that another engine was wandering about the locality some time looking for its line of hose and at last picked up the line belonging to the broken engine. Witness then went on to show that the collier property could have been saved by taking a line of hose into the alley, between Ninth and Tenth, or by taking the line from the corner of Tenth street and Clark avenue, through a passage, and playing a stream in a manner that witness had suggested to Assistant Bame. To Mr. Bame, who did as witness suggested at about 7 o'clock at night, was due the credit of saving whatever property belonging to the Collier Company that escaped destruction. On cross-examination by Mr. Sexton, Mr. Euston said that when he saw the fire first it was a very small affair, and at the time the engines arrived three steamers would have been enough to extinguish the flames. He did not know who was in charge of the fire. Didn't know that anybody was. Didn't know that Mr. Bame was in charge of the fire. Nobody in particular seemed to be in charge. Had nothing to say about the discipline of the department.

"All I know about the discipline of a fire department," said Mr. Euston, "is that the Chief of the fire department should use his brains, if he has got any——"

"If he has got any," reiterated the Chief.

"That's well put."

"Yes, and I mean just what I say. The Chief of the Fire Department should use his brains if he has any, and see that his assistants are within reach and not stationed at the wrong end of the lines of a hose. I believe the fire chief himself should be where he could be found, that they should be more civil to citizens and that firemen ought to know what they are doing when they are at a fire."

Further on witness said a man who discovered the fire when it was burning among some straw in the alley had given the alarm, which was turned on as promptly as possible. Witness did not think the block was any more combustible than any other one in which there was lumber. There were about 100,000 gallons of oil in the block. Witness reiterated his opinion that the fire had been very badly managed and that the officers of the department displayed a remarkable degree of inefficiency on the occasion.

Mr. Euston, having concluded his testimony, assumed the position of counsel for the prosecution, and called Patrolman Toone to the stand.

Officer Toone said he was on Ninth and Walnut when the fire was discovered. He turned on the alarm two or three minutes afterwards from the box at the corner of Tenth and Clark avenue. At this time the fire was small—so small that three or four engines could have extinguished it.

Being cross-examined, witness said that when he met Mr. Euston at Tenth and Clark avenue the fire was so big that Euston wanted a second alarm turned on. The officer did not turn it on because he could not do so without orders from the Fire Department.

David Landrigan, foreman at the Collier works, testified that when he saw the fire it was small and engines were on the ground. The flames had already taken hold of the tenements on Walnut street and on the Collier sheds, and the firemen were fighting them. He asked Hester to throw water on the Collier property, and Hester said there was no danger, as the wind was coming from the south. As witness saw the fire from the east end he thought two or three engines would have been enough to put it out. Witness corroborated Mr. Richeson's statement that a stream from Tenth and Clark avenue would have saved the Collier warehouses.

Martin Olmer, an employe of the company living at 212 South Tenth, who had a building on the rear of the alley that was burned down before the Collier warehouse was destroyed, and upon which not a drop of water had been poured. Witnesses said two streams of water could have extinguished the flames when the engines got there. If a stream had been carried up the alley the fire might have been put out at once.

On cross examination witness said when his wife first called his attention to the fire two buckets of water would have subdued the flames.

Water Commissioner Whitman said he was present at the Collier fire. From the distribution of pipes in that neighborhood he should imagine that the water supply was sufficient. Two plugs at the corner of Eighth and Spruce streets had not been used.

Being cross-examined by the Fire Chief, Mr. Whitman explained the net work of water pipes in the neighborhood of the fire. There was a 20 inch pipe on Seventh, a 10 inch on Fifth, a 15-inch on Clark avenue, and 15 inch pipe on Pine and a 20-inch pipe on Fourteenth street, connecting with 6-inch distribution pipes on the remaining streets. This was sufficient to supply all the engines present at the fire.

The Chief put a hypothetic case of seven engines drawing water from the same pipe, and throwing 4,900 gallons a minute, but Mr. Whitman said no such combination was possible with the construction of pipes now existing. There was plenty of pressure for every engine on the ground. He thought there was plenty of water.

The Chief put another case: If Engine No. 13, at the corner of Tenth and Market streets on the day of the fire, which could not then throw a stream as high as a two story house, and which not a cent of repairs had been put upon since, were to be taken out of its shed to day and placed at a plug and threw a strong and long stream, would not the Commissioner be willing to concede that this engine had not a supply of water on the 21st., when it failed to throw a stream. Witness acknowledged that he would, but on the 21st he saw the plug at Tenth and Market wasting water and the plug at Tenth and Walnut street was in the same condition, and when a plug wastes water it is the surest possible indication that the engine is getting all the water it wants.

The Water Commissioner was the last of Mr. Richeson's witnesses for the day. Chief Sexton was anxious to adjourn until Mr. Richeson was through, but the Mayor said the investigation would have to go on, as he was anxious to get through with it. Mr. Sexton was ordered to call up his witnesses. The Chief did so, and a half hundred firemen, assistant chiefs, newspaper reporters and others stood up and were sworn.

Comptroller Adreon testified that he had his attention called by the Mayor to a large volume of black smoke rising over the block on which the fire occurred. Witness remarked that they were a little late in getting on an alarm. Sergeant McGrew made the same remark, and ran down to Eleventh and Market streets to turn on an alarm, and would have done so, only an officer shouted to him not to do so. Witness and the Mayor walked down there. No alarm had sounded when they reached the scene, and it was then a very large fire. In witness' opinion it was a well-managed fire.

Mr. Fred H. Holmes, the insurance man, testified that he saw Bame going to the fire and followed right after him. When witness got to the scene the fire was burning rapidly. It was the most rapid fire witness had ever seen. If he had been fire chief he would not have tried to save any more of it than one or two brick dwellings on Tenth street. He did not think at the time it was possible to save anything else. He looked upon all the rest of the block as doomed from the very beginning. In witness' opinion the fire was admirably handled by the department. It could not have been better done.

Dr. S. H. Frazer testified that he was on the scene five minutes after the Fire Department, when the flames were raging fiercely. He saw some engines at work that could not get water. He went to the engineer of No. 15, on the corner of Tenth and Clark avenue, and told him to shut down, but he said if he did so he would not be able to get a stream again, as the other engines would take the water away from him. Witness testified to the excellent management of the fire.

Mr. Wm. Druhe, lumber merchant on Clark avenue, saw the fire five minutes after the alarm was turned on. Then a huge volume of smoke filled the alley, and afterwards he saw the flames making for the oil tanks and corroding sheds like a railroad train. He thought the fire well managed.

Mr. Chris. Oberbeck, who was at the fire, said he would have done just what the Chief had done. Witness had been a fireman from his boyhood up. He thought the department did a good thing in stopping the conflagration where they did.

Mr. John Allen, a carpenter on Walnut street, stated that he was in his shop when he heard the people dragging their goods out of the dwellings. He went in through a passage way on Ninth street, and afterwards towards Clark avenue. He did not know whether an alarm had been turned on. Then the corroding sheds had been taken hold of by the flames. He ran around the block and helped to take some women out of the houses on Walnut street. This was before the fire apparatus had reached the scene.

It was a big fire before the engines got there. The department did a good thing in stopping it where they did.

Aaron Sutton, bailiff of the School Board, testified to the efficient service of the department at the fire.

Capt. A. C. Hull, a former Chief of the Fire Department, said it was the best handled fire he ever saw.

Michael Howard, foreman of Butler's horse-shoe establishment, said the whole alley was on fire when the apparatus got there, and the fire was well managed.

Police Commissioner Kinkead said he jumped off a street car and went to the fire and helped around. He thought the fire boys did splendidly.

Thomas Rucker, foreman of the 15's, Michael Touey of the Skinner truck, and Thos. Finnerty, foreman of the 6's, all testified to the time they got to the fire and to the fact that it was already far advanced when they reached the scene.

Henry Rosenfeld, a citizen, said he saw the whole place on fire and the engines on Tenth street out of order. He thought the fire had been admirably handled.

At this point the investigation was adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Enston handed the Mayor the following names of persons present at the fire who are requested to come forward and give their testimony. A. Whipple, Howard Blossom, J. C. Richardson, C. W. Barstow, R. B. Brown, N. G. Larimore, John Larimore, E. Wuerpel, Dan D. Holmes, Ed. Butler, Chas. Evans, R. S. MacDonald, P. Greiten, G. Woltman, Geo. P. Whitelaw, Otto Wetzel, James E. Crawford and A. A. Mellier.

The Post-Dispatch Building.

Since Judge Adams' recent punishment of Waters and O'Malley for contempt of court the progress of the POST-DISPATCH building at 515 and 517 Market street has not been interfered with. The Judge at the time defined the injunction to cover and protect the whole building now in progress of erection by the Dispatch Publishing Company and warned the defendants that upon a repetition of the offence they would be summarily punished.

The Sheriff is still in possession of the saloon premises of the defendants on the executions sued out by Mr. Jay Torrey some days since, and the suit of Mr. Nelson for their ejectment will come up in a few days for settlement before Justice Young.

Work on the new building is progressing without any interruption up to the present time, and, so far, everything the vicinity is quiet.

BY ROPE AND POISON.

Two Unfortunates Leave This Vale of Tears.

A Patient at the City Hospital Hangs Himself With a Towel.

George Gregerson, aged 28 years, a patient at the City Hospital, committed suicide at 12:40 to-day by hanging himself in the bath-room with a roller towel. There were no witnesses but Dr. Dean and the private watchman of the hospital, who were examined by Coroner Frank to-day.

Dr. Dean testified as follows I am Superintendant of the City Hospital. The deceased was brought to the Hospital October 15, at 5:15 p. m., suffering with a very bad bowel complaint and some fever. He appeared to be wandering in his mind. On the evening of the 16th he appeared better, but seemed to be deeply impressed with the idea that he was going to die. He went to patient's beds and called them to his bed, inquiring of them whether they thought he was going to die. On the morning of the 16th, he asked for a piece of paper, which the nurse gave him, and he wrote his father's address saying "If anything should happen to me (I think I am going to die soon), this is my father's address; send him word." "This was not construed at the time as an intent on his part to injure himself, and as he was able to go all about the wards there was no particular necessity for watching him. At 12:40 a. m. to-day the night watchman called me, saying that the man had hanged himself. Found deceased lying on the floor of the bath room quite warm, but dead. The roller towel, twisted into a cord, was hanging on the roller. Deceased was admitted by permit from No. 509 South Second street." August Danker, the Hospital watchman was the first to discover the man hanging in the bath-room. He was standing with his knees bended. He took the man out of the noose, and called up the Superintendent. The suicide was very deliberate, for had the deceased straightened his legs he could not have hanged himself, as the noose was too low. The Coroner gave a verdict of suicide by hanging while temporarily aberrated in mind.

BY PARIS GREEN.

Coroner Frank to-day held an inquest at the City Hospital on the body of Margaret Barry, who was admitted to that institution yesterday in a perfectly conscious state. She said she had taken paris green, which she purchased at Seventh and Olive streets, and wanted to die. Her husband, Patrick Barry, who lives at No. 310 North Eighth street, said he left home at 5 o'clock yesterday morning to go to church. When he returned he found his wife in bed and attended by two police officers, who said she had taken paris green. In the fire place he found a portion of the poison.

Dr. Dean, of the City Hospital, testified that he had discovered the poison in a discharge resulting from an emetic administered. She died yesterday afternoon. Her husband said she did not agree with her daughters and she had warned him that she would drown herself several months ago. The deceased was 53 years of age and has two married daughters. After hearing the testimony a verdict of suicide by means of paris green was rendered.

Taaffe & Emerson are going to put $2,300 worth of repairs upon a livery stable on Tenth street, between Walnut street and Clark avenue.

M. Behan will soon erect a two-story, six-room brick dwelling on Broadway, between Berry and Cornelia streets, which will cost $1,500.

The Business Boom.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 17.—The Financial Chronicle says the whole matter as to how Gould was to obtain control of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad is shrouded in mystery. It intimates that three of the present directors must have been ready to act with him provided he carried the election last Thursday. The Financial Chronicle says the business of the country is expanding and was never more active or larger in volume than at the present moment. It states that thirty days hence England and the Continent will be receiving wheat so freely that the opportunity to sell 15,000,000 bushels to Europe is now probably lost and that the balance of our exportable surplus will have to be sold at lower prices. Southwestern railroads it says still show remarkably. Thurber, the large grocer, says business is very good and it began early on account of the large reaction in railroad shares. A large number of merchants have visited the market this year than any previous year in his recollection. In dry goods the boom is as great as in other trades. Mr. Cooley, of Bahes, Read & Cooley, says there have been more Western men in New York, this fall, than ever before, except during the Centennial year, and they have made large purchases. Never was there such a boom in the world. The outlook was never better in the history of the country. Collections are first-class. Other firms make like statements. Cheap passenger and freight rates have helped New York greatly.

En Route to Yorktown.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—President Arthur will leave this afternoon on the Dispatch for Yorktown. Secretary Blaine, Assistant Secretaries Hill and Blaine, and the French and German guests left this morning on the steamer Kaatskill for Mount Vernon and Yorktown.

It is the fashion for many people to neglect nature's laws and blame Providence for the result. A favorite thing with them is to neglect a Cough or Cold instead of using that unfailing means of relief, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. 25 cents a bottle.

A ST. LOUIS RECRUIT.

Found Murdered in the Streets of Cincinnati.

COLUMBUS, O., October 17.—The dead body of Charles P. McGrail was found in the northeast part of the city this morning. Evidence shows that he was going to the United States Garrison, having enlisted in the army a few days before, and was set upon by three or four men and brutally murdered. There was one welt on the forehead and marks of choking. The murderers stayed with him over an hour and then escaped. An old feud exists between a number of citizens of this part of the city and soldiers. McGrail was born in 1856, at Yazoo, Miss., was educated at Little Rock, and came here as a recruit from St. Louis last Saturday.

Dudley's Confirmation.

WASHINGTON, October 17.—Ex-Senator McDonald is here to fight the confirmation of Dudley, of Indiana, Commissioner of Pensions. McDonald, representing the Indiana Democracy, charges that Dudley as United States Marshal exceeded the duties and powers of his office in the political work; that in fact he prostituted his office to political purposes; that he appointed 526 Deputy Marshals in Indianapolis and others in other portions of the State to work for Republican success; that these marshals were in fact political agents and were appointed to do that work. McDonald expects to rally all the Democratic Senators against Dudley. Several Democrats are embittered against Dudley because they allege he discharged competent and faithful clerks from the Pension Bureau simply because they were Democrats. This fight will probably become a party question, and if it does Dudley's confirmation or rejection will depend upon the vote of Davis of Illinois. Dudley's friends claim that there are several Democratic Senators who will vote for him, while on the other hand his opponents say that a number of prominent Indiana Republicans desire Dudley's rejection and will influence the Republican vote against him.

O'Conner in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 17.—Thomas Power O'Conner and Dillon Egan, the Irish delegates, left last night for Boston where they will receive a great public welcome. The immense meeting at Steinway Hall last night is still the talk of the town. The crowd was enormous, and the enthusiasm intense. O'Connor spoke with decided tact and ability. The veterans of the forty-eight movement have yielded the ground to the younger generation who mustered in in great force. Special advices show that Ireland is at fever heat. In Limerick the people showed great exasperation and chased the police to the barracks.

Bold, Bad Men.

A. J. Patton, the engineer at the Alexander Building, corner of Fifth and Olive streets, had a remarkable experience Saturday night. Shortly after 8 p. m. he was entering his gate at 2712 Sheridan avenue, when three men caught him and choked him until he was almost insensible, and rifled his pockets. The only thing they secured was a valuable watch. Mr. Patton lay upon the sidewalk after the footpads had left him, unable to get into the house. To-day he is scarcely able to speak. The garroting occurred shortly after 8 o'clock. No trace of the ruffians has been discovered.

Still Growing.

Since Saturday noon $41 has been added to the Garfield monument fund, which now amounts to $848.15. The contributions were made as follows: Clerks with Greeley, Burnham & Co., $5 50; Webster School, $5; Daniel Catlin, Chas. S. Hills, Peter Nicholson and James L. Sloss, $5 each; R. Barctis and Walker Bro's, $3 each; C. Koler, Milton G. Clymer, T. L. Ohmann and Dr. A. H. Ohmann-Dumesnil, $1 each; F. Keisewether, 50 cents.

A Short Strike.

There was a strike of the "callers" of the "bucket-shops" this morning, they demanding a salary of $15 a week or no work. They all quit without giving any notice whatever to their employers, but, finding that they were not apt to bring their bosses to terms, they soon weakened and begged to be taken back. All but two were reinstated and the strike was at an end.

Legal Notes.

A petition for divorce was filed to-day by Emma McMurray against William F. McMurray.

Letters of administration were granted today to John C. Kuefner, executor of Helena Deek. Estate valued at $3,000.

The will of Henry Krull bearing date July 17, 1878, was admitted to probate to-day. The property is left to the widow who is appointed sole executrix.

A deed of assignment was executed to-day by Ronald McDonald, grocer, wines and liquors, corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, in favor of C. E Bradley, for the benefit of creditors. The assets are sworn to be worth $5,000.

The second annual settlement in the Rudolph Bircher estate was filed to-day in the Probate Court. The balance due the estate consists of cash in bank, $58,581 17; notes, $559 06; Pegram and Hilliard, on account of Laclede Hotel, two notes and interest notes, $53,000; accounts, $3,734 90.

Theo. W. Cunningham has filed a petition against Andrew McAllister in the Circuit Court, seeking a dissolution of the partnership of Cunningham & McAllister, composition roofing business; the appointment of a receiver; collection of accounts, payment of debts and distribution of surplus, etc.

Judge Treat has set Monday next in the U. S. Circuit Court for the hearing of the injunction case of Paramore's Texas and St. Louis Narrow Guage Road against the Iron Mountain and Southern Road, damages for alleged violation of agreement as to through rates, etc., pertaining to the connecting roads business.

W. W. Jilz, the patent augur man who made an odoriferous reputation here in connection with the seduced Shane family a few years since, figures in the United States Circuit Court to-day as plaintiff in a suit against the Challenge Well Auger Company and others. He is required to give security for costs in ten days.

Caught by Cupid.

The following marriage permits were granted to-day at the Recorder's office: Jacob Logan and Phœbe Jane Hawk; Martin Kamer and Mary Christine Ahlborn; W. S. Hynek and Kate Sedlack; Henry Dallmeyer and Josephine Meinsohn; M.E. Schuster to Louisa B. Micnel; Thos. McCune and Catherine Leahey; Maurice J. Fitzgerald and Hannah M. White; Daniel Whalen and Annie Burke; John A. Scott and Christine MacDonald; F. D. Rothweiler and Amalia C. Bischoff.

JONAS BRAUN, the negro who seriously stabbed Louis Peltier in a saloon on Third and Almond streets about 10 o'clock last night, was arrested at 10 o'clock this morning by Officer Schipp, on Lombard and Chouteau avenue.

THE election on the Cotton Exchange tomorrow will be a very quiet affair. Only one ticket is in the field, Mr. W. M. Senter for president, and Mr. W. L. Black for vice-president.

THE Baptist Pastors held a regular meeting this morning at the rooms of the American Baptist Publication Society on Sixth street.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Receipts 6,346 brls. Market quiet and unchanged in price. We quote: Fancy $7 25@7 50; choice $6 95@7 15; family $6 80@6 90; xxx $6 40@6 60; xx $5 05@6 10; x $5 65@5 75; superfine $5 25@$5 40; fine $4 70@4 90; extra fancy and patents held higher.

Wheat—Receipts 8,022 sks, 27,000 bu. Higher, but with futures still pursuing a very irregular course, as the feeling was unsettled, closing ⅛@¼ up and firm. Demand good from millers and shippers for grades, with speculators buying fairly. No. 2 red sold cash at $1 45⅞@¾, closing at about $1 45¾; November at $1 48⅜@1 48½; December at $1 53⅛@1 52⅛, closing at $1 52⅞; year at $1 46½; January at $1 56½@1 55⅛, closing at $1 55¾; for October $1 45⅛ bid; No. 3 red sold at $1 37@¼, and $1 37⅛ bid for A; No. 4 at $1 28⅛@$1 28; for rejected $1 08 bid; No. 2 Mediterranean sold at $1 43½; No. 3 Mediterranean at $1 36@¼ in C., with $1 36½ bid for more there; No. 3 spring salable at $1 15½, but No. 2 spring neglected.

Corn—Receipts 430 sks, 26,500 bu. Irregularly higher for No. 2 mixed futures, which closed ⅜@⅝ better, but the cash grade firm and in order, and speculative request. No. 2 white-mixed opened firm, but weakened off and rejected do was lower: rejected firm and wanted for shipment. No. 2 mixed sold at 64⅞@64 cash; 65⅜@65⅛ November, closing at 65¼; December at 68⅜@68⅛, closing at 68¼ bid; January at 70@69½, closing at 69⅝; May at 75@74⅛, closing at 75⅝; bids of 64 October; 63⅞ year; No. 2 white mixed 69@68¼ cash; 73½ December; rejected do at 65; rejected at 61½@⅜ this, 62½ east side; for no grade 47¼ bid.

Oats—Receipts 744 sks, 12,000 bu. Higher early, and cash was well maintained by a good order and feeding demand for No. 2 and active shipping competition for rejected, but futures became weak and declined later on, closing generally lower. No. 2 sold cash at 44@⅞; October at 44½, November at 46@45¼; December at 47⅛; year at 44½@43½, closing at 43⅝; May at 52@51½; bids of 48 January, 49½ March. Rejected sold at 40⅝@42; No. 2 white in E. offered at 45, bid 44⅝.

Rye—Receipts 181 sacks, 4,500 bu. Lower, but selling readily to the order trade; No. 2 at $1 06 and rejected at $1 00½; Oct. and year salable at $1 06; Nov. at $1 08⅛; Dec. at $1 12½.

Barley—Receipts 295 sks, 11,500 bu. Dull and easy; the warmer weather caused brewers to hold back. We quote: Low and medium 75@90; prime to strictly prime 95@$1; choice $1 05@1 10; fancy $1 15@1 20; Canada $1 15@1 27; California $1 25@1 30.

Hay—Receipts 170 tons. Steady and firm, as the supply was small, but demand moderate. Sales this side mixed $14@16; prime timothy $17 50@18, choice $21; choice prairie $13; East track prime timothy at $18.

Millfeed—Better, but rather irregular. Sacked bran sold at 86 on P. track and 86@88 at mill.

Provisions—With more encouragement in telegraphic markets, the feeling was better, and a stronger tone pervaded the markets, but prices were about the same and trade small. Standard mess pork jobbed at $18 25. Prime steam lard entirely nominal and worth about 11.80. Loose dry salt meats in good demand, with sales on basis of 7.70 for shoulders, 9½ for long clear, 9.60 for clear ribs, 10 for short clear; packed sold at 7.85, 10⅞@10 and 10½@.35 for shoulders, clear ribs and short clear. Packed bacon shoulders brought 8¾@9, clear ribs 10½@¾, and short clear (very firm) at 11. C. S. C. hams 13¾@15c for summer make. Tallow 7@7⅛, according to quality. Breakfast bacon 14½@15c. Grease 5@½ for brown, 5½@6c or yellow, 6@7½c for white. Beef—Extra mess $13 00 per brl; family $7 25 per half-brl; dried 14@15c per pound. Fresh smoked tongues $4 50@5 per doz. CATTLE—The supply of native and Southwest steers only moderate and altogether butcher grades—common to fair quality—which found ready disposal at strong prices. Local speculators and the canners made liberal purchases and paid high prices for the truck they took. By noon the supply was about all sold. There were no native shipping steers offered, and they were wanted, but would without doubt have sold a shade lower as the, run in New York was large and prices ¼@½ per pound lower all round. We note in the sales this morning the transfer of nineteen head of blooded yearlings steers, raised by J. M. Simpson, of Brunswick, Chariton county, Mo. They were beauties weighing 1,053 lbs., and brought $5 12½ per 100 lbs. Jim Metcalf was the salesman. Grass Texans and Colorado Texans in large supply and the quality very good Eastern and interior stockers made liberal purchases, at strong prices, but later values weakened. Stock cattle dull. Milch cows and springers scarce and wanted. Ruling quotations quiet.

Estate of Mary McCarthy, alias Smith.
Order of Publication.

Now at this day, comes Martrom D. Lewis, Public Administrator, having charge of the estate of Mary McCarthy, alias Smith, deceased, and presents to the court his petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of said deceased as will pay and satisfy the remaining debts due by said estate, and yet unpaid for want of sufficient assets, accompanied by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such case; on examination whereof

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased be notified that application as aforesaid has been made and that unless the contrary be shown on or before the first day of the next term of this court, to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the said city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of December next, an order will be made for the sale of the whole or so much of the real estate of said deceased as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published in some newspaper printed in the city of St. Louis aforesaid for four weeks before the next term of this court.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE PEOPLE'S.

The "Legion of Honor" Combination presented last evening at the popular house on Sixth street the new play bearing that title. Introduced to a large audience, Frank L. Gardiner's company made a most favorable impression, and the initial performance in St. Louis may be pronounced a complete success. The play is of the absorbing interest pertaining to the French school, furnished with strongly sensational incidents and effective scenes. The dialogue is carefully written and the plot well conceived. In the hands of such a company as that at the People's "The Legion of Honor" presents an attraction well worthy of substantial recognition. The leading roles were all admirably sustained last evening, Mr. Lewis Morrison as the Count Maubray, Mr. Hy. Lee as Raoul de Lignieres and Miss Annie Graham as Elise winning rounds of well-merrited applause for artistic excellence, and the minor roles were all creditably supported. The duel scene, upon which the curtain falls, is a strongly effective piece of work crowning the success of the play. It will have a prosperous run throughout the week at the People's.

OLYMPIC.

Denman Thompson as Josh Whitcomb opened at this house last evening to an audience prepared to give the popular delineator of the New England farmer a royal reception. Uncle Josh has lost none of his hold upon the public, and the characterization is as strongly marked as ever. Mr. Thompson has made a brilliant reputation upon this well-finished dramatic portraiture, and the role which he has brought into prominence will always be identified in the memory of play-goers with his successful professional career. It is a natural effort and a charming picture of New England life and character. The company rendered good support, and the setting was appropriate.

POPE'S.

The Hon. Wm. F. Cody—Buffalo Bill—commenced an engagement at Pope's last evening. This is a realistic presentation of border life, introducing real Indians in war paint, and feathers, etc. Mr. Cody appears in three changes, and he gives a remarkable exhibition of rifle shooting. The war songs and dances of the Indians caught the house last evening, and the performance gave entire satisfaction throughout. "The Prairie Waif" is a strong dramatic feature and will draw well at Pope's for the week.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

Joe Jefferson gave an extra performance of "Rip Van Winkle" at the Grand Opera-house last evening to a large audience. This evening the eminent tragedian, John McCullough commences his engagement at the Opera-house, appearing as Virginius.

NOTICE.—In pursuance of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, approved May 14th, 1879 entitled "An act concerning the publication of judicial notices in cities having more than one hundred thousand inhabitants," the undersigned judges of the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis hereby give notice that on the 7th day of November, A. D. 1881, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. of said day they will be in attendance in Court-room No. 4, at the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, for the purpose of receiving sealed proposals from the daily newspapers published in said city for the publication of all advertisements, judicial notices and orders of publication required by law to be made. Parties desiring to furnish such proposals are further notified that each bid must be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of $10,000, with good and sufficient security, conditioned that the principal therein will correctly and faithfully publish in the newspaper specified all said advertisements, notices and orders in manner and form as required by law and according to the schedule of rates named in said proposals. Said proposals must each be accompanied by a sworn statement, made by the publisher of the paper in whose behalf the proposal is made, showing the bona fide daily circulation of such paper to be over three thousand copies; and no proposal will be considered in behalf of any newspaper unless it have a bona fide daily circulation of at least three thousand copies. Each bid must also specify the rate per line for the first and subsequent insertions of said advertisements, notices and orders, giving the character of the type to be used and the width of column. The right to reject all or any of the proposals made for the reason that said bids are not sufficiently definite or specific, or that the same are unreasonably high, is hereby reserved.

Lina Arbogast
John Arbogast.

It appearing from the affidavit to the plaintiff's petition this day filed that the defendant is not a resident of the State of Missouri.

It is therefore ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground of desertion, and that defendant has offered to plaintiff such indignities as to render her condition intolerable, and for an order restoring her maiden name Kassel, and for the care and custody of her child mentioned in the petition.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of December next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

Karl Hermann J. Wieland.

It appearing from the petition of the plaintiff in this cause that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, and that he has absconded and absented himself from his usual place of abode in this State, therefore, on motion of the plaintiff by her attorney,

It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the grounds that defendant has failed to support the plaintiff and her infant child, has been addicted to habitual drunkenness for the space of more than one whole year before the first day of September, 1880, and has offered plaintiff such indignities as to render her condition intolerable, and that plaintiff may have her maiden name restored to her, and be awarded the care and custody of the infant child of plaintiff and defendant.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of December next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

SHERIFF'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST.—Whereas Peter Bianchi and Emma Bianchi, his wife, by their deed dated the 17th of August, A. D. 1874, and recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Louis county (now city), in book 540, page 15, conveyed to John C. Gairns in trust all their right, title, interest and leasehold estate in and to the following described real estate in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

A certain lot of ground lying in said city of St. Louis and fronting westwardly thirty-one (31) feet on Ninth street and running back eastwardly one hundred and twenty seven and a half (127½) feet, bounded on the north by Chestnut street, on the east and south by land now or formerly of James H. Lucas, and on the west by Ninth street, together with all erections and improvements thereon, being the same property leased by Henry F. Miller and wife to Abraham M. Gardner by indenture dated November 2d, 1868, and assigned by said Gardner and his wife to Louis G. Botto and Peter Bianchi by indenture dated May 27, 1874, both which indentures are recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Louis county (now city), in book 494, page 445, and assigned as to an undivided one half interest thereof by Louis G. Botto to Peter Bianchi by indenture dated July 30, 1874, and recorded in said Recorder's office in book 504, page 244; also the following goods and fixtures now in the saloon on the above described premises: Counter and shelving, ice-chest, two pictures (walnut frames), cigar show case, and all other articles, bar fixtures, et cetera.

Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of a certain promissory note in said deed described.

And whereas the said note remains due and unpaid, and the said John C. Gairns, said trustee, has removed and is now absent from the State of Missouri, without having completed the performance of the duties imposed on him by said deed of trust, and the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis having made an order on the 11th day of October, 1881, appointing the Sheriff of the City of St. Louis trustee to execute said trust in lieu and place of the original trustee.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and by virtue of the said order of court, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned will, on between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, proceed to sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, the above described leasehold estate, in and to the above described real estate, together with all the erections and improvements thereon, to satisfy said notes and the costs

"He Busted Up the Party."

Joseph Jondas gave a party last night to which Frank Fiala was invited. About 11 o'clock a row started, in which the host was hit in the head. Jondas spoke broken English when he applied to prosecute Fiala in the Police Court to-day.

"What did this man do?" asked Mr. Erskine.
"Broke up all the dishes and furniture."
"What else did he do?"
"Hit me with the meat."
"What else?"
"He busted all the party up."

Here the defendant asked the court: "Will you give me a chance?" "Yes, sir; you will have an opportunity to speak." Fiala then said that he did not intend to plead guilty to any such a string of unlawful acts as these. He was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty and enter a plea of not guilty. The case was continued until to-morrow.

Visiting His Wife.

George Lovering, an engineer, was arraigned before Judge Jecko in the First District Police Court to-day on a charge of disturbing the peace. About 1 o'clock this morning he went to Jennie Wilson's house of ill-fame, No. 16 South Seventh street, to see his wife, Florence Eastwood. The proprietress had him arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace, and today he was arraigned for trial. The women testified that he kicked in the door and threw rocks. He denied this, but was fined $25 and costs.

Both Legs Fractured.

Dan Carrol, a railroad laborer, went to Meramec Station yesterday to work at the wreck of a freight train there. While clearing away the debris he stood on the end of a long timber, which gave way, precipitating him a distance of several feet. Both his legs were fractured, and in addition to this he received a very painful wound in the cheek. He was brought to this city to-day. An ambulance was in waiting at Union Depot and transferred the injured man to City Hospital.

"Why, Clark Braden has returned to the attack with renewed strength."

"In regard to that piece of rhodomontade entitled 'Ingersol and Alcohol'?"

"Yes. Braden has published a half column extract from your address, and alongside it, a like amount from a work written by a Boston physician in 1857, and they correspond very nicely."

"They do. Well, now, I'll tell you about that. Five years ago, I defended a case in Chicago, and in the course of my speech I used a few remarks about intemperance, just a short bit. Some temperance lecturer stole this, tacked on to it a long extract which he stole somewhere else, and used the whole as my talk about temperance. The men who discovered the steal blamed me for the whole of it, when I never uttered a word of the stuff, except the first few lines."

"The charge is unfair then?"

"Just as unfair as it is easily refuted. Clark Braden is a coward and a sneak. Why, the d——n rot is not at all my doctrine. I would never use such language. I refer to that part about God and heaven, and all that, you know. It's all stolen, and the fellow that stole the bulk of it stole from me also, but only a few lines."

"How are things at Washington?"

"All quiet. I have just left there. Arthur will make a very good President, I guess. Davis' accession was well received and seemed to please everybody."

"What about Guiteau?"

"Hard to say. It's a curious case."

"What is the present position of the Star Route business?"

"It's in statu quo just now," said the Colonel. "I'll see you again," and he climbed on the omnibus and started for the Union Depot. Col. Ingersoll is on the way to New Mexico on a strictly business tour. He goes on a visit to his mines, and he does not know how long he will be away. He says that the mines have been a good investment, and that he is doing remarkably well, considering that he is a God-forsaken infidel.

A DEATH TRAP.

John Murdock Crushed to Death at the Old Theatre Comique—Other Victims.

The death traps now standing where the old Comique theater used to be, this morning at 9:30 o'clock closed on some new victims. John Murdock, George Walker and Mike Welsh, all in the employ of Pat Woodlock, the stone mason, were at work in the ruins of the old theater this morning getting out the cut stone sills on the street line. All three of these men were surging on crow-bars on one of these sills, a very heavy one, and their work jarred the adjacent wall. A section of the wall about twelve feet long and two or three wide parted from the main building and swung on the part where it was connected at the second story outward over the men. Several bystanders shouted to the men to look out, but before they could make themselves understood the shower of bricks had come down with crushing force. Murdock had all the ribs in his left side broken and driven in around his heart; his throat was also laid open with a brick, and he died almost immediately after being dragged out of the debris. George Walker was struck on the head with one brick and his skull probably fractured, one hip was dislocated and the other leg broken, and the spine probably injured. Walker was at once taken to the City Hospital, where it is not yet known whether his injuries will prove fatal or not. Mike Welsh, the third workman, was injured very slightly in the loins. He was also taken to the hospital. The dead man was about 40 years of age. He lived at Twenty-second and Scott avenue, and leaves a wife and family. His body is now at the Morgue, where it will remain until after the inquest. The contractor in charge of the general demolition of the old Comique theater claims yet that the building is perfectly safe and that it is nonsense for the other men at work in the building to be alarmed. At the same time, by a singular coincidence, one of the men is kept outside warning passers-by to keep out for God's sake. The heavy eighteen-inch wall at the east, which Mr. Brown claims is perfectly safe, sways back and forth with a most alarming surge on the least provocation. A man climbing up the rickety outside stairway this morning after the accident made the whole structure tremble and quake. As long as the east wall remains as it is, the death role of the Theatre Comique will not be closed.

A CLEW.

Coat, Pants, Hat and Shoes Found in an Alley, But No Owner.

Somebody made a mistake last night, and disrobed for bed in a public alley rear of 1863 Menard street. When Officer Dugge passed through that unfrequented by-way last night he found a dark cassimere sack coat hung up on the cobble stones of the alley. A few feet away from this a pair of light gray pants was carefully laid away near the fence. A soft black hat and a pair of low-quarter shoes were awaiting a freshet in the alley gutter, where they were carefully placed by their owner. In the pockets of the suit was found a red-and-white handkerchief, a small rule, a pocket knife, and a card of Kate Smith, 608 Myrtle street.

The police made diligent inquiries about the vicinity, asking the residents if they had seen a man meandering in any unusual street costume. The children were questioned about male ghosts, but no one could give any clue to the mysterious man who prepared for bed in a public alley.

Largest and Cheapest.

"The largest and cheapest house in St. Louis" is a pretty strong saying, and the claim made in it is a bold one. But the public, who know that Burrell, Comstock & Co., the famous furniture dealers, advance it, do much to confirm it. They buy largely of that firm, and the praise they give the goods is the strongest advertisement that could be desired. Certainly they have reason to be satisfied, for the furniture that comes out of this house can hardly be surpassed for beauty of design, elegance of finish, strength or durability. It is not a "household word," but a household comfort. Burrell, Comstock & Co. reciprocate the appreciation manifested by constant endeavors, successful endeavors, to perfect the quality of their furniture. They fearlessly invite examination and criticism, and defy competition. And as a great many young people are about to provide against the approach of winter by making preparations for housekeeping, they express a desire to aid them in that laudable enterprise. "A word to the wise is sufficient;" and "Shun delays, they breed remorse."

Joseph Murray, rchant tailor from Mexico, Mo., who uddenly insane at the Hotel Barnu has almost recovered. He wa und in the giddy masses of cotton culations until his mind gave way under the strain, and he was immured in St. Vincent's Insane Asylum.

His son came to town, thought it best to get his father where no immediate demands for margins would reach and took him home. Mr. Murray had nearly recovered when he left town. He is a very heavy loser by his transactions, several thousand dollars having disappeared while he was attempting to scalp the market.

THE SOCIAL CANCER.

Its Ruinous Effects on Decent Neighborhoods—A Notable Damage Suit.

The trial of the twenty-five thousand dollar damage suit, James Givens against Dr. Henry Van Studdiford, was set for to-day in Circuit Court No. 2. Some interest attaches to this case, which has been through all the stages of appeal and is now awaiting a second trial in the Circuit Court under a judgment of reversal and remand from the Court of Appeals subsequently affirmed by the Supreme Court. The suit involves the depreciation of rental values on account of immoral surroundings. In 1867 Mr. Givens purchased a house on Walnut street near the southeast corner of Sixth street. Dr. Van Studdiford owned a house on Sixth street adjoining the rear premises of Mr. Givens, which was rented to women of easy virtue in 1872. The tenants of the Walnut street property complained of the nuisance, and the landlord was notified, with an appeal to abate it, but it was not done. The neighborhood's ill-fame rapidly developed and the rental value of Walnut street property consequently depreciated. The commercial panic in 1873, however, caused a general depreciation of real estate throughout the city, but at the first trial of this suit evidence was offered to show that Dr. Van Studdiford's house was the first in the neighborhood to be rented to cyprians. Mr. Givens bought the Walnut street house for $29,000 at trustee's sale, and he leased it to a railroad company for five years expiring January, 1873. After that it was vacant for a year and was then rented for eighteen months at an annual rental of $1,800 and afterwards become vacant except that the plaintiff himself occupied a room in it because he could not get a suitable tenant. The house was sold in 1875 for $20,000 under a mortgage given by Mr. Givens, who then became lessee at a monthly rent of $150 with privilege of purchase for $24,657. The rental value of the property was $3,000 per annum in former times. The jury at the former trial found a verdict in favor of the defendant, whereupon Mr. Givens appealed. The Appellate Court sent the case back for a new trial, on account of errors in jury instructions, and Dr. Van Studdiford took it up to the Supreme Court, where, as an exception, the appellate ruling was sustained. The damages are claimed on the ground that the property suffered from the nuisance on Sixth street created by young women conducting themselves improperly at the windows and doors in full view of the neighborhood. The case was called up this morning in Judge Horner's court, when Col. Slayback, representing Dr. Van Studdford, stated that Marcus A. Wolff, an important witness, was attending the bedside of his brother, George Wolff, who was reported to be dying, and he would not be ready to go to trial, but said the Colonel: "We are very anxious to dispose of, this matter and do not ask a delay longer than necessary. The case must be disposed of and the sooner the better." Judge Horner re-set the case for Wednesday of next week.

MR. ISAAC POWELL, the owner of the Walnut street Livery Stables, Lancaster, Pa., writes: I used St. Jacobs Oil on a horse that was badly galled; it removed the soreness and healed more rapidly than any preparation I ever saw.

A MISHAP AT MERAMEC.

Five Men Injured by a Collision—One Fatally Crushed.

Passenger train No. 2, on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was due here at 6:10 last evening. It was nearly an hour late, and was bowling along at a high rate of speed, endeavoring to make up some of the lost time. Freight train No. 24, consisting of forty cars and two engines, was at Meramec Station, and Conductor Ross thought he would run to Kirkwood in advance of the passenger train, as the time seemed amply sufficient. About 6 o'clock last evening he ran his train out upon the main track, and was just ready to start when No. 2 came thundering around the curve. No. 2 never stops at Meramec, and expecting the track clear, Engineer Taylor did not slacken the speed and did not discover that the track was occupied in front of him until too late. He whistled for brakes, reversed his engine and jumped, as did also Fireman Bell. A moment later his engine had collided with the "pusher" on No. 24, and the two engines were shapeless masses of splintered wood and broken iron. The caboose in front of the "pusher" was slightly damaged. Only five persons were injured. Bell, the fireman on No. 2, was slightly bruised in jumping from the engine; Harrison, the engineer of the "pusher," had his foot badly lacerated, and amputation may be necessary. Ross, the conductor of the freight train, was badly bruised, but his injuries are in no way serious. Two negroes, who were stealing a ride on the platform front of the mail car, however, were badly hurt. One had his head badly crushed and cannot possibly recover. The other had his leg broken in two places, but will probably survive. A telegram was sent to Kirkwood and the accommodation from that point came down at once, and the track is now cleared again and the trains running on time. No blame is attached to any one for the accident, and it is very fortunate that it was of a no more serious character.

Make Your Home Attractive.

A neatly furnished house is one of the essentials of modern comfort. It is not within the power of all persons to enjoy in actual possession fine paintings and sculptures, but the art of decoration has been developed to such an extent of late, and applied to such useful purposes, that paintings and sculptures are no longer either the only or the best adornments of the household. A visit to the warerooms of Burrell, Comstock & Co. on Saturday showed us an astonishing number of beautiful articles in furniture and bric-a-brac which would adorn a palace. We found them reasonable and within the reach of a moderate purse.

DIAMONDS!

PROSPECTIVE HIGHER PRICES
AND THEIR SAFETY AS AN INVESTMENT!

Anticipating the rise which has already taken place in the value of Diamonds and other precious stones, and the certainty, almost, that they will continue to advance, we purchased in the European markets a very large stock, at much lower prices than the same goods command at the present time. This enables us to offer unusual advantages or guarantees, which we submit below.

1. Having a much larger stock than we would ordinarily carry, we will sell at a close margin.

2. If, for any reason, a purchaser desires to exchange after having made the purchase, we will cheerfully accord it without reduction in price, provided it is done without delay.

3. If, for any reason, a purchaser desires to return the goods, or to realize cash from the investment, a special arrangement may be made at the time of purchase to do so at a reduction of 10 per cent and the cost of setting, at any time within twelve months from date of purchase.

Guarantees of this nature from a responsible firm make the purchase of Diamonds a pretty secure investment.

Very Respectfully,

YOUNG MEN, SALESMEN, BOOKKEEPERS, STUDENTS,

And all who wish to dress tastily and well for a small or reasonable amount of money, we call your special attention to our tremendous assortment of

BUSINESS & DRESS SUITS

Clothing is a considerable item in every man's expenses, and where to buy it to the best advantage is a matter worthy of no small consideration. Excellence of material and trimmings, neatness of appearance, reliability of sewing and lowness of price are of equal importance to the consumer. In our selections of goods these features are never lost sight of. We know manufacturers in New York who excel in this particular branch of the business—YOUNG MEN'S SUITS—and from them we buy such goods.

Parties who have been carried away with the idea that to leave their measure "and pay exorbitant prices" for a suit of clothes would result in perfect satisfaction to themselves and the envy of their neighbors, invariably see the difference after it is too late, after they have spent double the money it would have taken in the first place to buy a really elegant-looking and perfect-fitting suit of us.

There is no mistake about it that the class of Ready-Made Clothing we are showing is really a credit to ourselves and to the Clothing Trade.
